

Thesis of Quantum Physics

Abstract

Einstein himself believed there was no way we could ever find the precise location of an electron. As of now, scientists only use what is called a wave function to determine where a single electron might be. But in this thesis, I'd like to address quantum mechanics as quantum physics because real quantum physics is what has provided me with a possible solution to this enigma. Any sort of theory other than quantum mechanics for the explanation of our reality must be thrown away if you are to consider the implications of my discoveries. Not only is this a discovery of the measurement of an electron, but the discovery of a new "Theory of Everything" as Hawking has described as his big bang or his origin of our existence.

Quantum Physics

Because of a blackhole's density, it has the largest gravitational pull in the universe. The Milky Way has a center which is, in fact, a black hole. If our entire existence in the universe is because of this phenomenon, how is it that it does not play a role in our beginning? My theory asks, "is it the answer to all spacetime itself?" This is because if time is relative to gravity then time is relative to negative mass and density because without it; there would be no universe, no planets, and no stars for galaxies to exist. This is because if density itself is related to gravity in space thereby density has a relation to time since gravity has a relation to time as well.

The equation is density and gravity in the universe is relative to all space and time.

Or

Speed of Time of Planets in a Solar System = Density of the Sun / Distance to the Sun X Planet Mass

greatest need Presently the world has great surpluses of food and fiber in some areas while there are devastating deficiencies in other areas Economic conditions and the lack of suitable infrastructure for distribution all too often limit the alleviation of hunger even when there are adequate supplies sometimes even within the country itself World hunger can only be solved in the long run by increasing crop production in the areas where the population is growing most rapidly This will require increased efforts of both the developed and developing countries Much of the technology that is so successful for crop production in the developed countries cannot be utilized directly in the developing countries Many of the principles however can and must be adapted to the conditions both physical and economic of the developing countries
