biodiversity especially beneficial microbes natural enemies and pollinators To achieve and ensure food security food safety and ecological security new theories methods practice and application patterns need to be developed for environmentally friendly pest control and maintenance of pollination in agricultural landscapes for sustainable food production The aim of this Research Topic is to promote the sustainable management of crop production and ecological environment protection through the discussion of crop pest control and pollination and the publication of original research articles and reviews of research and theory We welcome high quality and original contributions that present original papers on basic and applied research covering aspects of natural pest control and pollination Coverage for this Research Topic includes the biology and ecology of pollinators including wild and managed organisms including parasitoids invertebrate and vertebrate predators of insect pest and plants mites plant and insect pathogens nematodes and weeds used for biological control and aspects of use including biological control agents for integrated pest management on food crops fruits and vegetables in agricultural landscapes Natural pest control is an environmentally beneficial and effective means of reducing or mitigating pests and pest damage through the use of natural enemies Ecological ethological molecular and biotechnological approaches to the understanding of natural pest control and pollination in agricultural landscapes are welcome Such as by maintaining and increasing crop genetic diversity not including genetically engineered crops crop diversity species diversity not including genetically altered insects and landscape diversity in cropping systems
