AGNP BOARD EXAM QUESTIONS Urology Assessment (GRADED A)

Question:

In renal adaptation of the newborn, which one of the following statements is correct?

- The kidneys have an inability to concentrate urine and adapt to fluid and electrolyte stress. Correct
- In the nephrons of the kidneys long tubules enhance the effectiveness of tubular reabsorption.
- The kidneys are fully capable of concentrating urine and maintaining fluid and electrolyte balance.
- The kidneys have the ability to increase the production of antidiuretic hormone (ADH) effectively.

Explanation:

In the neonate the kidneys are structurally complete but physiologically immature. The glomeruli have an inability to filter and concentrate urine, therefore glucose and amino acids escape and there is decreased ability to remove uric acid crystals which give the reddish appearance to the urine. There is an inability to adapt to fluid and electrolyte stress leading to loss of bicarbonate and poor reabsorption. This puts the neonate at increased risk of metabolic acidosis. The tubules are short/narrow which causes a problem with reabsorption. The nephrons function well within a month. ADH inhibits diuresis and the immature kidney causes an increased risk for dehydration.

Patients with prior hypospadias surgery who develop slow and painful urination as well as prostatitis are experiencing symptoms of:

- neurogenic bladder,
- urethral stricture. Correct

Neurogenic bladder symptoms include urinary retention and/or incontinence associated with other underlying chronic neurologic conditions (e.g., multiple sclerosis) or after spinal cord injury. Resident & Staff Physician, 1998 The Present Illness Martin F. Shapiro, 2023-01-31 Beyond political posturing and industry quick fixes why is the American health care system so difficult to reform Health care reform efforts are difficult to achieve and have been historically undermined by their narrow scope In The Present Illness Martin F Shapiro MD PhD MPH weaves together history sociology extensive research and his own experiences as a physician to explore the broad range of afflictions impairing US health care and explains why we won't be able to fix the system without making significant changes across society. With a sharp eye and ready humor, Shapiro dissects the ways all groups participating: clinicians and their organizations, medical schools and their faculty, hospitals and clinical corporations, scientists and the National Institutes of Health, insurers and manufacturers, governments and their policies, and also patients and the public, shape and reinforce a dysfunctional system. Shapiro identifies three major problems stymieing reform: commodification of care, values expectations unmet, needs, attitudes, and personal limitations of participants, and toxic relationships and communication among these groups. Shapiro lays out a sweeping agenda of concrete actions to address the many factors contributing to the system's failings. Highlighting the interconnectedness of both the problems and potential solutions, he warns that piecemeal reform efforts will continue to be undermined by those who believe they have something to gain from the status quo. Although overhauling our health care system is daunting, Shapiro nonetheless concludes that we must push forward with a far more comprehensive effort in all sectors of health care and throughout society to create a system that is humane, effective, and just.
