Making Schools Work Barbara Bruns, Deon Filmer, Harry Anthony Patrinos, 2011 This book is about the threats to education quality in the developing world that cannot be explained by lack of resources It reviews the observed phenomenon of service delivery failures in public education cases where programs and policies increase the inputs to education but do not produce effective services where it counts in schools and classrooms It documents what we know about the extent and costs of such failures across low and middle income countries And it further develops the conceptual model posited in the World Development Report 2004 that a root cause of low quality and inequitable public services not only in education is the weak accountability of providers to both their supervisors and clients The central focus of the book however is a new story It is that developing countries are increasingly adopting innovative strategies to attack these problems Drawing on new evidence from 22 rigorous impact evaluations across 11 developing countries this book examines how three key strategies to strengthen accountability relationships in developing country school systems have affected school enrollment completion and student learning The book reviews the motivation and global context for education reforms aimed at strengthening provider accountability It provides the rationale and synthesizes the evidence on the impacts of three key lines of reform 1 policies that use the power of information to strengthen the ability of clients of education services students and their parents to hold providers accountable for results 2 policies that promote school based management that is increase schools autonomy to make key decisions and control resources often empowering parents to play a larger role 3 teacher incentives reforms that specifically aim at making teachers more accountable for results either by making contract tenure dependent on performance or offering performance linked pay The book summarizes the lessons learned draws cautious conclusions about possible complementarities across different types of accountability focused reforms if they are implemented in tandem considers issues related to scaling up reform efforts and the political economy of reform and suggests directions for future work

Policy and Inequality in Education Stephen Parker,Kalervo N. Gulson,Trevor Gale,2017-04-12 This book is an edited collection introducing the Education Policy and Social Inequality series and presents chapters from authors on the editorial board It investigates relations between educational policy and social inequality not simply in terms of policy solutions for inequalities but also how education policy frames creates and at times exacerbates social inequalities It adopts a critical stance encompassing innovative and interdisciplinary theoretical and conceptual studies drawing on e g sociology cultural studies social and cultural geography and history as well as original empirical work that examines a range of educational contexts including early years education vocational and further education informal education K 12 schooling and higher education The book argues that critique and policy studies can have a transformative function positing new dimensions for understanding the role of education policy in connection with recurrent social problems and seeking the amelioration of social inequality in ways that challenge the possibility of equity in the liberal democratic state as well as in other forms of governance and government

America's Children Federal Interagency Forum on Child and F,Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Studies (U.S.),2017-10-19 This report is a compendium of indicators about our Nation s young people The report the 20th produced by the Forum presents 41 key indicators on important aspects of children's lives. These indicators are drawn from our most reliable Federal statistics, are easily understood by broad audiences, are objectively based on substantial research, are balanced so that no single area of children's lives dominates the report, are measured often to show trends over time, and are representative of large segments of the population rather than one particular group.
