factories transforming their workforce and making the war effort a common cause for all Canadians to contribute to Klein demonstrates how wartime thinking and community efforts can be repurposed today for Canada's own Green New Deal. He shares how we can create jobs and reduce inequality while tackling our climate obligations for a climate neutral or even climate zero future. From enlisting broad public support for new economic models to job creation through investment in green infrastructure, Klein shows us a bold practical policy plan for Canada's sustainable future. More than this, A Good War offers a remarkably hopeful message for how we can meet the defining challenge of our lives. COVID-19 has brought a previously unthinkable pace of change to the world, one which demonstrates our ability to adapt rapidly when we're at risk. Many recent changes are what Klein proposes in these very pages. The world can actually turn on a dime if necessary. This is the blueprint for how to do it.

Routledge Handbook of Public Communication of Science and Technology Massimiano Bucchi, Brian Trench, 2014-06-20. Communicating science and technology is a high priority of many research and policy institutions, a concern of many other private and public bodies, and an established subject of training and education. Over the past few decades, the field has developed and expanded significantly, both in terms of professional practice and in terms of research and reflection. The Routledge Handbook of Public Communication of Science and Technology provides a state-of-the-art review of this fast-growing and increasingly important area through an examination of the research on the main actors, issues, and arenas involved. In this brand-new revised edition, the book brings the reviews up to date and deepens the analysis. As well as substantial reworking of many chapters, it gives more attention to digital media and the global aspects of science communication, with the inclusion of four new chapters. Several new contributors are added to leading mass communication scholars, sociologists, public relations practitioners, science writers, and others featured herein. With key questions for further discussion highlighted in each chapter, the handbook is a student-friendly resource, and its scope and expert contributors mean it is also ideal for both practitioners and professionals working in the field. Combining the perspectives of different disciplines and of different geographical and cultural contexts, this original text provides an interdisciplinary and global approach to the public communication of science and technology. It is a valuable resource for students, researchers, educators, and professionals in media and journalism, sociology, the history of science, and science and technology.

The New World History Ross E. Dunn, Laura J. Mitchell, Kerry Ward, 2016-08-23. The

New World History is a comprehensive volume of essays selected to enrich world history teaching and scholarship in this rapidly expanding field. The forty-four articles in this book take stock of the history evolving literature and current trajectories of new world history. These essays together with the editors' introductions to thematic chapters encourage educators and students to reflect critically on the development of the field and to explore concepts, approaches, and insights valuable to their own work. The selections are organized in ten chapters that survey the history of the movement, the seminal ideas of founding thinkers, and today's practitioners changing concepts of world historical space and time, comparative methods, environmental history, the big history movement, globalization, debates over the meaning of Western power, and ongoing questions about the intellectual premises and assumptions that have shaped the field. William Faulkner in Context John T. Matthews, 2015-01-15 William Faulkner in Context explores the environment that conditioned Faulkner's creative work and offers readers a framework in which to better understand this challenging writer. Thinking Otherwise Susan A. Brewer, Richard H. Immerman, Douglas Little, 2024-10-15 Thinking Otherwise addresses the question of what makes a great historian by exploring the teaching and scholarship of Walter LaFeber, widely acclaimed as the most distinguished historian of US foreign relations. This volume of essays edited by Susan A. Brewer, Richard H. Immerman, and Douglas Little is a testament to a scholar who published more than a dozen books during his time at Cornell University where he delivered legendary lectures for half a century. The chapters trace LaFeber's journey as a scholar and demonstrate his enduring influence on the history of US foreign relations by linking six of his monographs to his abiding concern about the fate of the American experiment from the 18th century to the present. Thinking Otherwise explains and assesses the scholarship of a historian whose work became canonical in his lifetime and continues to resonate throughout public policy debates.

Invisible Hands Jonathan Sheehan, Dror Wahrman, 2015-05-29 In Invisible Hands the historians Jonathan Sheehan and Dror Wahrman identify a defining feature of the eighteenth-century Enlightenment: the decline of God as a source of order in favor of a new model of self-organization. Sheehan and Wahrman provide a novel account of how people on the threshold of modernity understood the continuing presence in the world of apparent disorder, randomness, and chance. If God no longer actively guaranteed that order will always prevail, what or whom did the answer to the authors' argument was a new appreciation for complexity, new understandings of causality, and new functions for the divine hand. At the foundation of this novel way of thinking was the ability to imagine complex systems, be they natural or human, as self-organizing. Invisible Hands maps and explains the intensifying presence of the languages of self-organization throughout the eighteenth century, proliferating as they did with ever greater sophistication across numerous intellectual domains and cultural arenas. For self-organization was less a theory than a field of new insights, insights into the dynamics of chance and randomness into the relationship between agency and determinism, into the role of God in a world without hands, on providence. Colour Matters Carl E.

Global Philosophy Nicholas Maxwell, 2014-11-05 This book is about education learning rational inquiry philosophy science studies problem solving academic inquiry global problems wisdom and above all the urgent need for an academic revolution Despite this range and diversity of topics there is a common underlying theme Education ought to be devoted much more than it is to the exploration real life open problems it ought not to be restricted to learning up solutions to already solved problems especially if nothing is said about the problems that provoked the solutions in the first place A central task of philosophy ought to be to keep alive awareness of our unsolved fundamental problems especially our most fundamental problem of all encompassing all others How can our human world and the world of sentient life more generally imbued with the experiential consciousness free will meaning and value exist and best flourish embedded as it is in the physical universe This is both our fundamental intellectual problem and our fundamental problem of living The essays in this volume seek to provoke a concerted effort to transform our institutions of learning so that they become rationally and effectively devoted to helping us learn how to create a wiser world Our most serious problems of living are so grim so imbued with suffering wasted lives and unnecessary death that the idea of approaching them in a playful spirit seems sacrilegious We need to keep alive tackling of intellectual problems so that playful capacities can be exercised if for no other reason and other reasons there are of course aplenty There are two really worthy impulses behind all rational inquiry delight and compassion
