INTERVIEW Almost everyone has heard horror stories about someone else's interview. We prepare you for the selection committee by telling you what you can expect to be asked from the tried and true favorites to off the wall questions that might make you flinch. Writing Science Through Critical Thinking Marilyn F. Moriarty, 1997 Written and extensively class tested with NSF/NIH support this timely and useful text addresses a crucial need which is acknowledged in most universities and colleges. It is the need for students to learn to write in the context of their field of study in this case science. Although numerous how to writing books have been published few if any address the central pedagogical issues underlying the process of learning to think and write scientifically. The direct connection between this writing skill and that of critical thinking is developed with engaging style by the author an English professor. Moriarty's book is an invaluable guide for both undergraduate and graduate science students. In the process of learning the specific requirements of organization demanded by scientific writing students will develop strategies for thinking through their scientific research well before they sit down to write. This instructive text will be useful to students who need to satisfy a science writing proficiency requirement in the context of a science course a course in technical writing advanced composition or writing for the profession. Best Medical Schools 1999 Andrea Nagy, Malaika Stoll, Princeton Review (Firm), Paula Bilstein, 1998-09-14 The Princeton Review gives readers an honest evaluation of the business law and medical schools they are considering. Their guides explain what life is really like at the nation's top schools with information on academics faculty admissions and financial aid plus important phone numbers and addresses needed to apply. As always these guides are updated annually to report the latest changes at each school.
