Wolhuter,2020-12-31 The thesis of this volume is that the fields of scholarly enquiry of Education internationally as well as in South Africa in particular despite being fields of virile scholarly activity and output are in need of a major overhaul In this collected work this want in research is encapsulated in three words relevance rigour and restructuring Research in the scholarly field s of Education is predominantly of small scale non accumulative widely condemned as not of a comparable standard to research done in other social sciences much less upon a par with research in the natural sciences and lacking structure in the sense of being anchored in a firm theory To make matters worse scholars in Education internationally and in South Africa have till very recently eschewed discussion as to the packaging or structuring of knowledge produced by Education research The book consists of chapters containing original research unpacking these desiderata from a variety of angles The authors had them served by a variety of methods from deductively argued position papers to empirical research the latter both quantitative survey research and qualitative Discussing New Materialism Ulrike Tikvah Kissmann, Joost van Loon, 2019-02-27 The essays in this volume discuss the various approaches to New Materialism in Sociology and Philosophy They raise the questions of what New Materialism consists of and whether it in fact should be considered a radical change in Social Theory Are the ideas of a material turn as the theory is formulated and in its assumptions foreshadowed by the classical philosophies of Spinoza and Tarde Do these new approaches bring substantially new perspectives to Social Theory A further goal of these essays is to formulate the methodological and methodical consequences for its empirical implementation What conditions must an ethnography of things fulfill if it is to be sufficient Which participant objects and bodies do the approaches of the various social theories and methodologies include or exclude

Elements of an Evolutionary Theory of Welfare Martin Binder, 2010-05-04 It has always been an important task of economics to assess individual and social welfare The traditional approach has assumed that the measuring rod for welfare is the satisfaction of the individual's given and unchanging preferences but recent work in behavioural economics has called this into question by pointing out the inconsistencies and context dependencies of human behaviour When preferences are no longer consistent we have to ask whether a different measure for individual welfare can and should be found This book goes beyond the level of preference and instead considers whether a hedonistic view of welfare represents a viable alternative and what its normative implications are Offering a welfare theory with stronger behavioural and evolutionary foundations Binder follows a naturalistic methodology to examine the foundations of welfare connecting the concept with a dynamic theory of preference learning and providing a more realistic account of human behaviour This book will be of interest to researchers and those working in the fields of welfare economics behavioural and evolutionary economics
