Security and Credit in Roman Law Hendrik L. E. Verhagen,2022-09-05 There are no legal institutions other than pignus and hypotheca i e mortgage where the formative effect of legal practice can be so clearly observed Security and Credit in Roman Law outlines the legal history of these institutions in terms of an iterative relationship between transactional lawyers drafting legal transactions and Roman jurisprudence deploying its analytical skills in order to accommodate new transactional practices into the Roman legal system The evolution of the Roman law of real security well known through the legal sources Justinian s Digest and Code is reconstructed while matching it with actual banking practices in particular the secured lending transactions documented in the archive of the Sulpicii In the late classical period the imperial chancery increasingly interfered with it in order to provide a considerable degree of protection to debtors The largely but certainly not completely spontaneous evolution of Roman law produced a law of secured transactions which was highly sophisticated and versatile allowing non possessory security multiple charges pledges of receivables antichretic pledges and even floating charges over a dynamic fund of assets Since legal systems often adapt in reaction to impulses from their economic environment the complexity of the Roman law of real security indicates that pignus and hypotheca did play a significant role in the Roman economy It will be shown that this role was generally a positive one Its main weaknesses were lack of publicity and the presence of fiscal charges even these weaknesses did not undermine the effectiveness of secured transactions

Drawing, Design, and Craft-Work Frederick J. Glass, It is hardly necessary to day to advance a plea for the teaching of drawing design and craft work Their importance is or should be recognised by all authorities on education It is well however that the teacher should have a clear comprehension of the part played by these subjects in the development of the intellect and character of the scholar This is essential firstly that he may have confidence in his teaching with a corresponding strength of purpose and enthusiasm and secondly that he may be in a position to defend effectively his belief in the work he is doing Despite the fact that the majority of educational authorities recognise its value critics still abound who would have us believe that such work merely panders to effeminate tastes and a love of luxury whilst denying its practical utility Such critics need to be confuted and this can only be done by formulating definite reasons for the serious study of the subjects in hand At the outset we must recognise that man is complex and many sided hence his needs are complex and multifarious An unfortunate tendency exists in some quarters to regard human beings merely as productive machines with a capacity for executing so much work upon which the profit usually accruing to those holding this view will be so much and that education should therefore be designed on this basis Such an opinion is unworthy of consideration and may be dismissed at once It must be granted that as far as possible all human capacities are worth developing otherwise the curriculum will have a bias tending to develop certain faculties leaving others to become atrophied It is in some such comprehensive scheme that art work as here dealt with plays its part It develops certain powers for which no scope is permitted in other subjects The faculty of observation is quickened by training the vision whilst the memory is cultivated to retain the images thus correctly seen Drawing is a method of expression older by far and more natural than writing for the alphabet in use to day is a development of early picture writing Again the child as soon as he can walk endeavours to express graphically the beings and objects amongst which he lives making no attempt to write Direct Reporting of Private Sector Cross-Border Financial Flows and Stocks in Selected African Countries Simon Quin, Kenneth Egesa, Howard Murad, 2014-02-27 Private cross border financial flows and stocks have grown to account for an increasingly significant part of overall transactions and positions in many African countries Direct reporting through enterprise surveys has become a key data source to enable them to be measured accurately The paper describes a multi year technical assistance project in The Gambia Ghana Kenya Mauritius Mozambique and Nigeria where annual enterprise surveys are now established To varying degrees the survey results have been incorporated into the balance of payments and International Investment Position statistics The case studies may serve as a useful reference for other countries embarking on efforts to establish direct reporting of cross border financial flows and stocks Russell, Hugo and Ayliffe's
