

Practice test 3

Use the following passage to answer questions 1-6

Toddlers are notorious for putting things in their mouths that they shouldn't. As one of nine children and with three kids of my own, I can most assuredly attest to that. I remember one time while growing up when one of my elder brothers was supposed to be watching our youngest brother. Our youngest brother was playing with a bracelet, and several of my siblings and I had mentioned that he shouldn't play with that. We told our youngest brother to keep it out of his mouth, but toddlers always think they know best.

It wasn't long before I heard gasping, only to turn around and find my little brother lying in the chair, choking. Despite my fear and dismay, I rushed to his side and could see the bracelet there in the back of his throat. It took two tries, but I managed to get my finger hooked around that bracelet and pulled it free from his throat and out of his mouth.
