Self-Evaluation Paper

Giving four speeches in class and afterward observing them like an audience member has been a helpful and interesting experience. Messages that I felt would be delivered successfully ended up falling flat, while others that I worried over turned out positively at times. This has benefited me by allowing an assessment of the planning and preparation stages along with the execution and result. Entering the class, I felt that I was already a rather strong public speaker. Now I know more clearly the many areas on which a person can focus when honing this skill. I am also aware which of these areas I must improve upon to become a more effective public speaker.

I have had a number of opportunities in the past to get in front of people and speak. Usually it was related to work and involved the demonstration of a procedure or educating people on a subject. While this class did not introduce anything immediately unfamiliar to me (such as getting in front of a group and doing something worthwhile with everyone's time), the objectivity of speechmaking was very much a new idea for me. Along with this came learning many of the tools a speaker must employ when crafting a message that is to be received by an audience of individuals—also a new idea. In the past, I always felt confident in my ability to deliver a speech or give a demonstration effectively, but now I realize that I did not generally concern myself with the many speechmaking tools that have been brought up in this class. New Ideas for Effective School Improvement William Ramsay, E. Eugene Clark, 1990 This book develops an approach to school development which is contextual in that it considers both the larger social structure of which the school is a part and those special features of schools themselves which impact upon the possibilities for their improvement The book derives from a eight year longitudinal study of school evaluation at St Mary s College a Catholic girls school in Tasmania It builds upon and provides a practical exploration of such recent developments as Straratt and Caldwell s work on educational vision the role of evaluation in measuring the extent to which a school s vision has become reality the effective implementation and management of change and Coleman and Hoffer s notion of social capital and the importance of school community networks in effective education

Information Retrieval Evaluation Donna Harman, 2022-05-31 Evaluation has always played a major role in information retrieval with the early pioneers such as Cyril Cleverdon and Gerard Salton laying the foundations for most of the evaluation methodologies in use today The retrieval community has been extremely fortunate to have such a well grounded evaluation paradigm during a period when most of the human language technologies were just developing This lecture has the goal of explaining where these evaluation methodologies came from and how they have continued to adapt to the vastly changed environment in the search engine world today The lecture starts with a discussion of the early evaluation of information retrieval systems starting with the Cranfield testing in the early 1960s continuing with the Lancaster user study for MEDLARS and presenting the various test collection investigations by the SMART project and by groups in Britain The emphasis in this chapter is on the how and the why of the various methodologies developed The second chapter covers the more recent batch evaluations examining the methodologies used in the various open evaluation campaigns such as TREC NTCIR emphasis on Asian languages CLEF emphasis on European languages INEX emphasis on semi structured data etc Here again the focus is on the how and why and in particular on the evolving of the older evaluation methodologies to handle new information access techniques This includes how the test collection techniques were modified and how the metrics were changed to better reflect operational environments The final chapters look at evaluation issues in user studies the interactive part of information retrieval including a look at the search log studies mainly done by the commercial search engines Here the goal is to show via case studies how the high level issues of experimental design affect the final evaluations Table of Contents Introduction and Early History Batch Evaluation Since 1992 Interactive Evaluation Conclusion

Interfaces to Database Systems (IDS94) Peter H. Sawyer, 2013-11-11 A brief survey of the major DBMS and HeI conference proceedings over the past 10 years will reveal isolated pockets of research in database user interfaces but little sense of being swept along with the general advances in DBMS technology and HeI New data models have evolved to meet the needs of different application domains persistent programming languages are blurring the traditional distinction between data definition and application programming languages distribution and inter operability have become issues as have the storage of heterogeneous media types yet it is still rare to read of the HeI issues raised by these technological innovations being expressly addressed and rarer still to find recognition of the usability problems with longer established database technologies There are at least two reasons why this should be surprising Database systems are not like other computer systems existing both as back ends to other applications and as stand alone data stores they are typically slow deal with very large volumes of data and can involve all sorts of security confidentiality and even cooperability issues Databases are everywhere Perhaps only word processors and spread sheets are more widespread In addition as business cultures change and personal computing continues to mould expectations end users find themselves interacting increasingly closely with database systems
