

Short-Term and Long-Term Career Goals

I have worked at Boeing in different capacities for close to twelve years. For the first six years, I was not drawn to the financial or leadership aspects of the business. This is because am passionate about being an engineer and thus found great fulfillment in creating innovative designs and solving difficult problems. I was mentored and taught by some excellent engineers and was emulating their success quickly.

One day, a senior manager called me into his office and told me that the organization needed me to serve as a lead engineer on the upcoming KC-46A Tanker program. I was surprised and thrilled, but my first inclination was to decline the offer. I loved the engineering work, and I feared that this role would distance me from being an engineer. However, being an adventurous person, I was up for the challenge.

The role of a lead engineer was transformative. It was a fast-paced, tumultuous project which I was not skilled at first despite inordinate amounts of preparation; I was often terrified, overly-wordy, and unpolished. I discovered the project that had cracks from the foundation. I had to elevate design deficiencies to program directors and VP to seek expensively, compulsory design changes to meeting USAF requirements.

Thankfully, I received adequate coaching and practice making me grow better. I savored the challenge of those encounters with senior leadership. I was a witness to brilliant minds making difficult, far-reaching decisions in real-time. This is not to say I did not witness posturing and poor decisions made because of short-sighted political calculations. These experiences planted a nagging need in me that eventually caused me pursue a role as an engineering manager. Do I have what it takes to do better? The perfect answer is yes.

My long-term goal is, therefore, to grow and develop into an executive leader who is business savvy, confident, appropriately opportunistic and makes good decisions in the face of scarcity and pressure.

Being a contributor and member of the Technology MBA program at the University of Washington Bothell is a short-term goal that I am convinced is the best way to achieve my long term goal. From my research of the program and study of the model, and especially the idea of the cohort approach, I am convinced that this program will help me strengthen areas that I need to improve. I need a more technical knowledge in marketing and finance and have a thirst to know how other com
