

What is personification?

The trees danced in the wind.

The stars winked in the night sky.

The sun smiled happily down at us.

The grey clouds cried drops of rain.

robotics competitions sessions with private tutors and conversations around the dinner table children from more affluent families build the skills and social networks that propel them to success In The Opportunity Equation Schwarz tells the story of how he founded the pioneering Citizen Schools program to combat rising inequality by bringing these same opportunities to children who don't have access to them By increasing learning time in schools and harnessing the power of an army of volunteers with various skills and professional backgrounds lawyers engineers carpenters journalists nonprofit leaders and grandmothers who sew Citizen Schools offers after school apprenticeships that provide the building blocks for adult success Recounting the triumphs and setbacks he's encountered in implementing the program Schwarz shows that some of the nation's lowest performing schools in its lowest income cities can with help provide their students with many of the same experiences wealthy communities afford to their children The results have been proven in the dozen school districts from New York to Oakland that have partnered with Citizen Schools rates of attendance proficiency graduation and college acceptance have gone up and the achievement gap closes At a time when many stakeholders in the education debates are looking for new silver bullet shortcuts to educational excellence Schwarz shows that the best solution is human centered rooted in the American tradition of citizen voluntarism and most important achievable We can provide quality education for all students and close the opportunity gap in this country and we can do it together

Chekhov's Children Nadya L. Peterson, 2021-08-15 Anton Chekhov's representations of children have generally remained on the periphery of scholarly attention Yet his stories about children which focus on communication and the emergence of personhood also illuminate the process by which the author forged his own language of expression and occupy a uniquely important place within his work Chekhov's Children explores these stories dating from Chekhov's early writings in the 1880s as a distinct body of work unified by the theme of maturation and by the creation of a literary model of childhood Nadya Peterson describes the evolution of Chekhov's model and its connection with the prevalent views on children in the literature education medicine and psychology of his time As with his later writing Chekhov's portrayals of young protagonists exhibit complexity diversity and a broad reach across the writer's cultural and literary landscape dealing with such themes as the distinctiveness of a child's perspective the relationship between the worlds of children and adults the nature of child development socialization gender differences and sexuality While reconstructing a particular literary model of childhood this book brings to light a body of discourse on children childhood development and education prominent in Russia in the late nineteenth century Chekhov's Children accords this topic the significance it deserves by placing Chekhov's model of childhood within the broad context of his time and reassessing established notions about the child's place in the author's oeuvre

School Management and Effectiveness in Developing Countries Clive Harber,Lynn Davies,2006-02-08 This book is quite different from existing Western books on school effectiveness It describes and analyses the way in which schools operate in developing countries and also tries to explain why they are as they are Examining them at three levels the macro the meso and the micro the authors use a theoretical framework that they have termed post bureaucracy The book has four interlinked sections First the authors examine the existing economic and theoretical contexts around school effectiveness including an analysis of the causes of economic crisis and its impact on school management In the second section the analysis of schools as bureaucratic facades is proposed The reality of school life from which any theory of school effectiveness must derive is illustrated by an ethnographic account of the job of the headteacher in developing countries The third section explores different ways to understand this reality operating on three levels global relationships national and community cultures and individual agency In the final section Haber and Davies draw these levels and realities together They argue for the democratization of schools as the only way forward for effective education for development
