Inclusion, Disability and Culture Elsayed Elshabrawy Ahmad Hassanein, 2015-02-03 This book examines some theoretical and empirical aspects about complexities of inclusion disability and culture It challenges the globalized technical and reductionist approach of inclusion and argues that concepts of disability and inclusion are culturally constructed Disability and inclusion are concepts which do not define a global agenda in the sense that one size fits all Rather they should be seen as being completely context dependent and that they should be deconstructed with respect to specific cultural contexts with respects to society ethics religion and history The main argument of the book is that many cultural backgrounds including Egyptians have their own long standing beliefs and practices which do not define or address disability in the same way as western culture Such cultural differences in understanding disability may lead to different understandings conceptualizations and practices of inclusion The book articulates disability and inclusion within a socio ethical religious discourse based on the Islamic underpinnings of equality and differences This discourse enhances and supports the calls for considering inclusion and disability within a cultural model that takes into account the common values about disability in any given context which consequently will affect the way educational provision is provided in that context Finally the book challenges the psychological concept of attitude that has been represented in the literature simply as a matter of acceptance or rejection Inclusion Disability and Culture shows that attitude is a complex and context dependent issue that can t be understood in isolation from the wider context within which such responses were created Specifically the role of the social views about disability religious values school cultures educational system and structural and organizational constraints can t be underestimated in understanding teachers attitudes towards a complex issue like inclusion

Researching Yugoslavia and its Aftermath Branislav Radeljić,Carlos González-Villa,2021-06-14 In Researching Yugoslavia and its Aftermath a common thread is the authors path through the time and space context in which fieldwork has taken place Accordingly this collection tackles problems that have always existed but have not been dealt with in a single volume In particular it examines a range of methodological questions arising from the contributors shared concerns and thus the obstacles and solutions characterising the relationship between researchers and their objects of study Being an interdisciplinary project this book brings together highly regarded historians sociologists anthropologists political scientists cultural and social theorists as well as experts in architecture and communication studies They share a belief that the awareness of the researcher's own position in fieldwork is a precondition of utmost significance to comprehend the evolution of objects of study and hence to ensure transparency and ultimate credibility of the findings. Moreover, the contributors come from diverse backgrounds including authors from the former Yugoslavia and others who have made their way to the region after starting their research careers, some from universities in the area, others from institutions in the Global North. Here they explore cross-cutting issues such as the repercussions of gender, nationality, institutional affiliation, and the consequences of their entry into the field. This is examined in terms of the results of the research and the ethical aspect of the relationship with the object of study, as well as the implications of the chosen time framework in the methodological design and the clash between this decision and the interests of the actors studied.

District Heating and Cooling Networks in the European Union. Antonio Colmenar-Santos, David Borge-Díez, Enrique Rosales-Asensio, 2017-07-18. This book evaluates the potential of the combined use of district heating networks and cogeneration in the European Union (EU). It also proposes measures to remove barriers hindering their widespread implementation, formulates policies for their implementation, and evaluates their economic, energy, and environmental consequences. The book presents a preliminary assessment of the likely cost and the impact of widespread adoption of district heating networks and cogeneration carried out in three cities that represent the variety of climatic conditions in the EU. Based on this assessment, it is estimated that by undertaking the maximum economically feasible implementation across the EU, fuel savings of 95 M/year would be achieved, representing energy savings of 6,400 petajoules (PJ), which is around 15% of the total final energy consumption in the EU in 2013 (46,214.5 PJ). Using simple and quick calculations and not specific software, the method used allows the evaluation of the potential benefits of retrofitting existing power plants into cogeneration plants and connecting them to nearby heating networks. In light of increasing energy costs and environmental concerns, the book is of interest to heating engineers, city planners, and policy makers around the globe.

Eurocentrism, Qur'anic Translation and Decoloniality. Ahd Othman, 2024-05-22. Eurocentrism, Qur'anic Translation and Decoloniality contributes to the understanding of Eurocentrism in Translation Studies and engages with the concept through the lens of scholarship on Arabic and Qur'an translation. This book calls for a deeper consideration of Eurocentrism as essential for several debates in the discipline, including its scientific character and future development. It claims that the angle of Arabic and Qur'an translation is a valuable and nearly unexploited area where tensions in translation scholarship can play out in revealing ways. The book also draws connections between Eurocentrism, Qur'an translation, and decolonial thought in order to highlight decoloniality as a useful framework for imagining a post Eurocentric discipline The book will appeal to scholars and postgraduate students and researchers interested in Translation Studies particularly within the areas of Arabic Qur'anic Islamic and religious translation
