sake or for the sake of the customers These customers were either very young men who hung about the window for a time before slipping in suddenly or men of a more mature age but looking generally as if they were not in funds Some of that last kind had the collars of their overcoats turned right up to their moustaches and traces of mud on the bottom of their nether garments which had the appearance of being much worn and not very valuable And the legs inside them did not as a general rule seem of much account either With their hands plunged deep in the side pockets of their coats they dodged in sideways one shoulder first as if afraid to start the bell going The bell hung on the door by means of a curved ribbon of steel was difficult to circumvent It was hopelessly cracked but of an evening at the slightest provocation it clattered behind the customer with impudent virulence It clattered and at that signal through the dusty glass door behind the painted deal counter Mr Verloc would issue hastily from the parlour at the back His eyes were naturally heavy he had an air of having wallowed fully dressed all day on an unmade bed Another man would have felt such an appearance a distinct disadvantage In a commercial transaction of the retail order much depends on the seller s engaging and amiable aspect But Mr Verloc knew his business and remained undisturbed by any sort of sthetic doubt about his appearance With a firm steady eyed impudence which seemed to hold back the threat of some abominable menace he would proceed to sell over the counter some object looking obviously and scandalously not worth the money which passed in the transaction a small cardboard box with apparently nothing inside for instance or one of those carefully closed yellow flimsy envelopes or a soiled volume in paper covers with a promising title Now and then it happened that one of the faded yellow dancing girls would get sold to an amateur as though she had been alive and young Sometimes it was Mrs Verloc who would appear at the call of the cracked bell Winnie Verloc was a young woman with a full bust in a tight bodice and with broad hips Her hair was very tidy Steady eyed like her husband she preserved an air of unfathomable indifference behind the rampart of the counter

The Secret Agent Joseph Conrad,2021-02-17 Such was the house the household and the business Mr Verloc left behind him on his waywestward at the hour of half past ten in the morning It was unusually early for him his wholeperson exhaled the charm of almost dewy freshness he wore his blue cloth overcoat unbuttoned hisboots were shiny his cheeks freshly shaven had a sort of gloss and even his heavy lidded eyes refreshed by a night of peaceful slumber sent out glances of comparative alertness Through thepark railings these glances beheld men and women riding in the Row couples cantering pastharmoniously others advancing sedately at a walk loitering groups of three or four solitaryhorsemen looking unsociable and solitary women followed at a long distance by a groom with a cockade to his hat and a leather belt over his tight fitting coat Carriages went bowling by mostly two horse broughams with here and there a victoria with the skin of some wild beast inside and a woman's face and hat emerging above the folded hood And a peculiarly London sun against which nothing could be said except that it looked bloodshot glorified all this by its stare It hung at a moderate elevation above Hyde Park Corner with an air of punctual and benign vigilance The very pavement under Mr Verloc's feet had an old gold tinge in that diffused light in which neither wall nor tree nor beast nor man cast a shadow Mr Verloc was going westward through a town without shadows in an atmosphere of powdered old gold There were red coppery gleams on the roofs of houses on the corners of walls on the panels of carriages on the very coats of the horses and on the broad back of Mr Verloc's overcoat where they produced a dull effect of rustiness But Mr Verloc was not in the least conscious of having got rusty He surveyed through the park railings the evidences of the town's opulence and luxury with an approving eye All these people had to be protected Protection is the first necessity of opulence and luxury They had to be protected and their horses carriages houses servants had to be protected and the source of their wealth had to be protected in the heart of the city and the heart of the country the whole social order favourable to their hygienic idleness had to be protected against the shallow enviousness of unhygienic labour It had to and Mr Verloc would have rubbed his hands with satisfaction had he not been constitutionally averse from every superfluous exertion
