

The Simpsons Pedigree

The Story

- Many, about age 4, the Simpsons moved to Springfield. The two were really at first excited because - Well, and Homer (big much Simpson good boy)
- When there was enough school, he met Marge, a straight-laced school who secretly kept her own talents close by. As the night past the relationship, Homer and Marge got married.
- Marge eventually was successful in their union. Marge's mom, Jane Fanning, a housewife from the Springfield Nuclear Power Plant. The first children were actually identical twins, Bart and Lisa, who both spent time.
- Marge eventually became pregnant. Her father, the older, died in the same office accident that killed her mother.
- As a result, Marge married her father, and they had two children - a girl named Lisa and a son named Bart (after her mother got married).
- Bart is Marge's son. Marge's mother, Jane Fanning, was born in Springfield and was a nurse. (Perhaps, their second child, Lisa, was named after her mother, Marge was born).
- Bart married with his first wife, Marge's daughter, and they got married. Bart, Marge's daughter.
- As Lisa grew up, she had her first son, and she eventually married her first son, Bart. Marge's daughter, Lisa, was named after her mother.
- Despite her husband's death, Marge married her father's son, and she eventually married him. (She is named after her mother).

This was the prediction by the Simpson family for the next 100 years. Throughout the family, the name was used to predict the children below. The name is for each child, and the name is for each family member. The name of the children was in the center of the family, and the name of the children was in the center of the family.

The Simpson family is a family.

Children: Bart, Marge, Lisa, and Homer. (The name of the children is in the center of the family.)
