The Distributed Functions of Emergency Management and Homeland Security David A. McEntire, 2023-07-19

The Distributed Functions of Emergency Management and Homeland Security outlines the roles and responsibilities of various individuals and agencies involved in homeland security and all aspects of emergency management. Each chapter focuses on the practical and applied aspects of a range of public servants in various departments and the organizations that they represent. Rather than presenting a theoretical exploration alone, the book examines the practical knowledge and hands-on skills related to various functions and how their decisions and actions play into the larger framework of safety and security in the public, private, and nonprofit sectors. Every professional has a unique and integral part to play in fulfilling their roles and obligations, whether it be in relation to prevention, mitigation, preparedness, response, or recovery operations. Personnel that frequently come to mind in such scenarios include emergency managers, geographers, and land use planners; EMTs and paramedics; fire fighters; police officers; public health officials; nurses; public administrators; and public information officers. And while these individuals are integral to homeland security and emergency management, there are other professionals that also perform essential duties that while they aren't first to mind, are vital to efforts relating to terrorism and disasters. This includes pilots in the aviation sector, the military, attorneys, psychologists, and forensic professionals serving in pathology, DNA, and dentistry roles. Chapters provide a holistic rendering of the homeland security and emergency management landscape to present all these various professional capabilities and contributions. This includes how current functions are coordinated as well as how future efforts might change relative to a more proactive, all-hazards, and holistic approach. As such, the book will be a useful resource for students and practitioners to understand the dynamic professions and various disciplines and fields that impact disaster and terrorism preparedness and response capabilities.

The School-Home Connection Rosemary A. Olender, Jacquelyn Elias, Rosemary D. Mastroleo, 2010-03

Research has consistently shown that student success is directly related to the strength of the relationships between parents and schools. This book provides teachers and administrators with tools to build a foundation for student success based on positive relationships with students and their families. Drawing on original research and their professional experiences, the authors identify the common sources of both negative and positive school-home relationships. The book presents a comprehensive approach to building closer connections and includes tools to help educators develop a deeper understanding of the communities they serve. Strategies for improving interpersonal skills and communication skills. A chapter on the importance of documenting and celebrating school events. Guidelines for creating three distinct levels of parental participation in schools. With suggestions for cultivating a community network of support services and a summary of lessons for forging constructive relationships. The School-Home Connection is an essential tool for educators looking to strengthen the learning community and increase student achievement.

Faith, Hope, and Jobs Stephen V. Monsma, 2006-08-04

A front burner issue on the public policy agenda today is the increased use of partnerships between government and nongovernmental entities including faith based social service organizations In the wake of President Bush s faith based initiative many are still wondering about the effectiveness of these faith based organizations in providing services to those in need and whether they provide better outcomes than more traditional government secular nonprofit and for profit organizations In Faith Hope and Jobs Stephen V Monsma and J Christopher Soper study the effectiveness of 17 different welfare to work programs in Los Angeles County a county in which the U S government spends 14% of its entire welfare budget and offer groundbreaking insight into understanding what works and what doesn t Monsma and Soper examine client assessment of the programs their progress in developing attitudes and resources important for finding self supporting employment and their experience in finding actual employment The study reveals that the clients of the more explicitly faith based programs did best in gaining in social capital and were highly positive in evaluating the religious components of their programs For profit programs tended to do the best in terms of their clients finding employment Overall the religiously active respondents tended to experience better outcomes than those who were not religiously active but surprisingly the religiously active and non active tended to do equally well in faith based programs Faith Hope and Jobs concludes with three sets of concrete recommendations for public policymakers social service program managers and researchers
