- Design and construct novel biological organisms programmed by genetic circuits using standardized biological parts called BioBricks.
- Every BioBrick is a physical DNA sequence on a circular plasmid
- Standardized sequences on BioBricks enable Standard Assembly of two BioBricks
- Several BioBrick assembly standards have been proposed to improve upon the original BioBrick standard
- Traditional techniques involve assembly by restriction enzyme digestion and ligation. iGEM utilizes this in an idempotent fashion
- There are also several existing and more recently developed PCR-based methods currently being used for DNA assembly that have the potential for standardization. These convert overlapping, blunt-end PCR products into fragments with sticky overhangs that can anneal to form circular plasmids.
