Visual Thinking Strategies for Individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorders Ellyn Lucas Arwood, Carole Kaulitz, Mabel M. Brown, 2009 Visuals of all kinds photographs checklists line drawings cartoons flowcharts stick figures etc are commonly used as supports for individuals on the autism spectrum who tend to think and learn visually However not all visuals are created equal and therefore visuals don't all work equally well This companion to Learning With a Visual Brain in an Auditory World helps the reader understand how to match the developmental levels of pictures and visuals to the developmental level of the person looking at the visual In this way appropriate visuals provide the language development for children with autism spectrum disorders Drawing from their experience with children and youth for decades the authors also show how effective communication can help reduce the confusion and anxiety that often lead to behavioral outbursts Google Books

WISC-IV Advanced Clinical Interpretation Lawrence G. Weiss, Donald H. Saklofske, Aurelio Prifitera, James A. Holdnack, 2006-05-18 For both experienced psychologists and graduate students WISC IV Advanced Clinical Interpretation moves quickly through the essentials of WISC IV interpretation and onto an insightful analysis of the major cognitive domains assessed by WISC IV It is the intention of the editors to raise the standard of practice from a simplistic test label place model to a clinical model of assessing to understand and intervene In the first chapter the reader is presented with a comprehensive array of societal and home environment factors for which there is empirical evidence indicating their impact on the development of children's cognitive abilities and ultimately their scores on intelligence tests Subsequent chapters address issues related to the assessment of cognitive abilities that compose g with special emphasis on the clinical correlates of working memory and processing speed from both neuropsychological and cognitive information processing perspectives Each new chapter builds on material presented in previous chapters and progresses the reader purposefully through deeper levels of understanding of WISC IV and cognitive assessment in general Two chapters explicate the processing approach to interpretation that is the corner stone of the WISC IV Integrated A further chapter addresses the interpretation of WISC IV findings within the context of other instruments as part of a full psychological evaluation The final chapter provides an extensive case example of how to write psychological evaluation reports from a child centered rather than a score centered perspective that can have transforming impact on parents and teachers approach to the child Overall these four authors are the architects of a masterful new book on advanced WISC IV interpretation from a clinical perspective Together with the complimentary book WISC IV Clinical Assessment and Intervention Second Edition these books provide the complete spectrum of information needed by all psychologists who use the WISC IV in clinical practice The Wechsler scale is the most widely used assessment of children s intelligence Authored by assessment experts including Harcourt Assessment staff with exclusive data on the WISC IV Discusses interpretation of 4 index scores of WISC IV Examines the WISC IV in relation to other frequently used psychological tests Describes the importance of the WISC IV integrated in clinical assessment Predicts scholastic achievement based on WISC IV subtest scores Discusses modification of score interpretation based on culture SES other contextual factors

Learning a non-native language in a naturalistic environment: Insights from behavioural and neuroimaging research Christos Pliatsikas,Vicky Chondrogianni,2015-09-02 It is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language s per se these factors include the age of acquisition AoA of the target language s the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate Recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language This can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used Existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing More recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure This Research Topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment These include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies
