Resources in Education, 1992-04 Multiple Representations in Biological Education David F. Treagust, Chi-Yan Tsui, 2013-02-01 This new publication in the Models and Modeling in Science Education series synthesizes a wealth of international research on using multiple representations in biology education and aims for a coherent framework in using them to improve higher order learning Addressing a major gap in the literature the volume proposes a theoretical model for advancing biology educators notions of how multiple external representations MERs such as analogies metaphors and visualizations can best be harnessed for improving teaching and learning in biology at all pedagogical levels The content tackles the conceptual and linguistic difficulties of learning biology at each level macro micro sub micro and symbolic illustrating how MERs can be used in teaching across these levels and in various combinations as well as in differing contexts and topic areas The strategies outlined will help students reasoning and problem solving skills enhance their ability to construct mental models and internal representations and ultimately will assist in increasing public understanding of biology related issues a key goal in today s world of pressing concerns over societal problems about food environment energy and health The book concludes by highlighting important aspects of research in biological education in the post genomic information age

Science Education in Canada Christine D. Tippett, Todd M. Milford, 2019-07-01 This book offers a meso level description of demographics science education and science teacher education Representing all 13 Canadian jurisdictions the book provides local insights that serve as the basis for exploring the Canadian system as a whole and function as a common starting point from which to identify causal relationships that may be associated with Canada's successes. The book highlights commonalities, consistencies, and distinctions across the provinces and territories in a thematic analysis of the 13 jurisdiction-specific chapters. Although the analysis indicates a network of policy and practice issues warranting further consideration, the diverse nature of Canadian science education makes simple identification of causal relationships elusive. Canada has a reputation for strong science achievement. However, there is currently limited literature on science education in Canada at the general level or in specific areas such as Canadian science curriculum or science teacher education. This book fills that gap by presenting a thorough description of science education at the provincial/territorial level as well as a more holistic description of pressing issues for Canadian science education. Research in Education, 1973

Revolutionary Struggles and Girls' Education Thera Mjaaland, 2021-07-27

Revolutionary Struggles and Girls Education At the Frontiers of Gender Norms in North Ethiopia argues that at the base of girls' poorer performance than boys at secondary school level when puberty has set in is the symbolic violence entailed in sanctioned femaleness. Informed by the modesty of Virgin Mary in Orthodox Christian veneration, it instructs girls to internalize a holding back which impinges on her self-efficacy and ability to be an active learner. Neoliberally informed educational policies and plans which have co-opted liberal feminism also in Ethiopia do not address hard-lived gender norms and the power and domination dynamics entailed when parity between boys and girls in school continues to be the dominant measure for equity. Despite women's courageous contribution at a literal frontier during the Tigrayan liberation struggle 1975-91 where they fought on equal terms with men and despite the tendency that girls outnumber boys at secondary level in the present context, sanctioned femaleness constitutes a frontier for girls' educational success and transition to higher education. In fact, when teaching/learning continues to be based on memorization rather than critical thinking, the very transformative potential of education is undermined, also in a gendered sense.
