Understanding Cinema Per Persson, 2003-07-28 Table of contents Postcolonial and Gender Perspectives in Irish Studies Marisol Morales Ladrón, 2007 This book represents an attempt to tackle questions related to fragmented and often conflicting ideologies within Irish studies. Although a collective outcome with contributions in English and Spanish, its unifying concern has been the appliance of postcolonial and gender perspectives to the analysis of Irish literature, prose, drama and verse and cinema as well as to the aesthetic production of both the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland. Along the volume while some authors have chosen to delve into the broad theoretical debate concerning the position of Irish studies within postcolonial and feminist theories, others offer detailed examinations of specific literary pieces and authors that fit in this panorama. All in all, the chapters are wide and diverse enough to trace a spatial and temporal map of the evolution of these paradigms within contemporary Irish studies. Inhospitable World Jennifer Fay, 2018-03-01 In recent years environmental and human rights advocates have suggested that we have entered the first new geological epoch since the end of the ice age the Anthropocene In this new epoch humans have come to reshape unwittingly both the climate and natural world humankind has caused mass extinctions of plant and animal species polluted the oceans and irreversibly altered the atmosphere Ironically our efforts to make the planet more hospitable to ourselves seem to be driving us toward our inevitable extinction A force of nature humanity is now decentered as the agent of history As Jennifer Fay argues this new situation is to geological science what cinema has always been to human culture Film like the Anthropocene is a product of the industrial revolution but arises out of a desire to preserve life and master time and space It also calls for the creation of artificial worlds unnatural weather and deadly environments for entertainment scientific study and devising military strategy Filmmaking stages quite literally the process by which worlds and weather come into being and meaning and it mimics the forces that are driving this new planetary inhospitality Cinema in other words provides an image of nature in the age of its mechanical reproducibility Fay argues that cinema exemplifies the philosophical political and perhaps even logistical processes by which we can adapt to these forces and also imagine a world without humans in it Whereas standard ecological criticism attends to the environmental crisis as an unraveling of our natural state this book looks to film from Buster Keaton to Jia Zhangke to films of atomic testing and early polar exploration to consider how it reflects upon the creation and destruction of human environments What are the implications of ecological inhospitality What role might cinema and media theory play in challenging our presumed right to occupy and populate the world As an art form film enjoys a unique relationship to the material elemental world it captures and produces Through it we may appreciate the ambitions to design an unhomely planet that may no longer accommodate us Cahiers du cinéma, 1994
