English Translation and Classical Reception Stuart Gillespie, 2011-05-06 English Translation and Classical Reception is the first genuine cross disciplinary study bringing English literary history to bear on questions about the reception of classical literary texts and vice versa The text draws on the author s exhaustive knowledge of the subject from the early Renaissance to the present The first book length study of English translation as a topic in classical reception Draws on the author s exhaustive knowledge of English literary translation from the early Renaissance to the present Argues for a remapping of English literary history which would take proper account of the currently neglected history of classical translation from Chaucer to the present Offers a widely ranging chronological analysis of English translation from ancient literatures Previously little known unknown and sometimes suppressed translated texts are recovered from manuscripts and explored in terms of their implications for English literary history and for the interpretation of classical literature Paul's

Line of Thought in 2 Corinthians 4:16-5:10 Fredrik Lindgård, 2005 Fredrik Lindgard analyzes verses 4 16 5 10 in 2 Corinthians verses which have often been used to argue that Paul s eschatology developed over time or to ascertain whether or not Paul is an anthropological dualist Paul s concern is how the Corinthians see him His aim is to show them that he is frank and open to them and that his attitude to adversities confirms that he is a real apostle He reveals his thoughts and emotions when facing suffering The author shows that the section and its context do not support the view that Paul changed or developed his eschatology Instead the text displays the unsystematic character of Paul s eschatology Concepts which Paul normally uses separately occur side by side without elaboration Although Paul uses both dualistic and holistic language the dominating feature is dualism The analysis shows that a wide rhetorical approach can be useful when trying to understand Paul The Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature David Hopkins, Charles Martindale, Norman

Vance, Rita Copeland, Patrick Cheney, Jennifer Wallace, Philip R. Hardie, 2012 The Oxford History of Classical Reception OHCREL is designed to offer a comprehensive investigation of the numerous and diverse ways in which literary texts of the classical world have stimulated responses and refashioning by English writers Covering the full range of English literature from the early Middle Ages to the present day OHCREL both synthesizes existing scholarship and presents cutting edge new research employing an international team of expert contributors for each of the five volumes OHCREL endeavours to interrogate rather than inertly reiterate conventional assumptions about literary periods the processes of canon formation and the relations between literary and non literary discourse It conceives of reception as a complex process of dialogic exchange and rather than offering large cultural generalizations it engages in close critical analysis of literary texts It explores in detail the ways in which English writers engagement with classical literature casts as much light on the classical originals as it does on the English writers own cultural context This fourth volume and second to appear in the series covers the years 1790 1880 and explores romantic and Victorian receptions of the classics Noting the changing fortunes of particular classical authors and the influence of developments in archaeology aesthetics and education it traces the interplay between classical and nineteenth century perceptions of gender class religion and the politics of republic and empire in chapters engaging with many of the major writers of this period
