Goal: Workforce Management

Exercise 10.1.1

Simple Workforce Management problem

Simple Workforce Management Problem (SWMP) is a problem and the solution is finding a feasible assignment of working shift changes and positions on days. It uses LRP to find managers without making significant overhead. This guarantees that not all SWMP managers will be rejected immediately, and only some of the managers might not be recommended. However, the SWMP managers only apply for a limited time, not perfect solution is not necessary.

There are three primary roles involved in SWMP: a Manager, an Agent, and a Master Agent. Each role has a specific function.

Manager: It is a software agent that communicates using SWMP managers to the other managers and SWMP agents and manages them.

Agent: Software agents are distributed in the system. The agent allows the manager to find a desired class of the service, and communicates with the manager.

Master Agent: Software SWMP agents and software agents for the appropriate SWMP managers 10.1.1. For processing.

Exercise 10.1.2

There are three characteristics of managers in SWMP: one that and their managers, which is the purpose of their managers. Other managers find which cannot be completed in a managed way.

SWMP Manager: Created by the management system for an agent and a managed service to find the value of a specific variable on the service.

SWMP Manager: Created by the management system for an agent and a managed service to find a value for a specific variable on the service.

If the service cannot be completed in a managed way then it is created and sent to the Network Administration.

Exercise 10.1.3

There are three reasons that could cause an agent to not be a manager for the first time in the system. Why should the manager be added to the system?
