But really my soil is rust-colored instead.

Which planet am I? _____

2. With over 63 moons, you might say I have a lot.

Which planet am I? _____

3. I'm blue and green and a little brown.
I'm a small planet with life all around.
They call me the third rock from the sun.
I don't have many moons - just one.

Which planet am I? _____

4. No matter how hard you look, you'll never find me.
Unless you have a telescope to help you see.
I was once called a planet, but not any more.
Now I'm just a "Dwarf Planet," but too important to ignore.

5. Look very close to the sun and you'll spot,
A tiny, cratered planet that's very hot.

Copyright Office, 1971 ENC Focus, Family Involvement in Education, 1998 Outlook Alfred Emanuel Smith, Francis Walton, 1882 Brain-powered Science Thomas O'Brien, 2010. How can a long metal needle pass through a balloon without popping it? How can water flow at very different rates through two identical funnels? How can a stick placed on a table under several sheets of newspaper and extended over the edge of a table snap when quickly struck without lifting or tearing the paper? Author Thomas O'Brien takes these and 30 more science inquiry activities to a higher level in this book for educators who love to surprise and challenge their students with unanticipated results. Using experiments based on the science of a discrepant event, an experiment or demonstration in which the outcome is not what students expect, O'Brien shows how learners can be motivated to reconsider their preconceived notions and think more closely about what has actually occurred and the underlying scientific explanations. What makes this volume more valuable than a mere activity book is the addition of a science education component to the extensive science content found in each activity. Each discrepant event is shown to be analogous to a pedagogical principle. Speaking directly to teachers, O'Brien writes: "Your participation as teacher as learner, experimenter rather than simply passive reader in these minds-on activities will lead you to question and help you to revise your implicit assumptions about the nature of science teaching and learning. At the same time you will develop expertise with activities that you can use with your own students." The dual purpose activities thus allow you to unlock two doors with one key: the doors to your own learning and to your students' learning. The detailed analogies between the activities and science learning make the book an ideal resource for middle and high school teachers, science teacher educators, and their preservice students and professional development specialists alike. This thorough and thought-provoking text includes more than 200 up-to-date internet resources as well as extensions to each of the physical science, biology, and chemistry activities, bringing the total number of inquiry activities to nearly 120. Most important, the author reminds teachers that the study of science is full of surprises and should be both meaningful and fun for students. The Elementary School Library Collection Lauren K. Contributions from Latin America Camilo Hurtado-Parrado, Carlos Gantiva, Leonardo A. Ortega, Alexander Gómez-A, Lucas Cuenya, Javier Leonardo Rico, 2020-05-11 Latin America has increased its share of world scientific publications by nearly twofold during the last two decades approximately from 2 to 4% Despite this positive trend the scholarly impact of scientific research produced in the region measured in terms of citation rate remains low Two interrelated factors that contribute to this situation is that most research groups tend to work in isolation or in local sporadic collaboration and results are often published in journals that are not indexed in major citation databases e g SCOPUS or Web of Science Ultimately part of Latin American high quality research seems to remain hidden from the rest of the world Over the last decades an important number of Latin American scientists have developed fruitful research agendas on questions on learning and emotion focusing on basic and or translational research with humans and other animal models and implementing diverse methodologies Notwithstanding the important contributions of these research programs Latin American research on emotion and learning has followed the overall trend of other research fields throughout the region namely remaining partially hidden from the large scientific community of the world This Research Topic aimed to engage researchers from Latin America to share their empirical and conceptual work on learning and emotion Ultimately this effort was expected to strengthen and integrate our regional community of experts enhance global networking and establish new challenges and developments for future
