Language and Literature Studies Other Martin Luther University course Seminar Academic Discourse language English abstract Academic writing is a task that students especially in the social sciences engage in very frequently during the course of their studies They have to compose essays research reports term papers etc which besides being the basis for students evaluation are to prepare them for their professional careers later in life For those who will stay in the field writing is going to be a major activity At university a student s writing skills set him or her apart from other students in the eyes of the professor but there is no real competition all papers will be read by the instructors In the professional world however with an abundance of academic texts and with limited time only those articles will get attention that besides containing profound reasoning are at the same time well written i e conveniently structured precise short well formulated etc This paper is part of a study on academic writing conducted within the seminar Academic Discourse The study examines students works with regard to the authors writing skills It looks at the various components of a student term paper linguistic features and structural elements to detect the problems German students of English have. The objective is to create a guide for current and future students in this department experiencing difficulties in this area. It combines advice from published writing guides and professors' linguistic theory and personal experience and is to be an introduction to academic writing for beginners and a reference booklet for the more experienced. We did not attempt to produce a 'How to' manual but rather tried to name the problem areas and to offer help on those with advice and examples. It cannot take the responsibility off the students for the further refinement of their skills by other means.

Being a Researcher Carlo Ghezzi, 2020-06-22. This book explores research from the researcher's perspective: why to engage in research, what methods to follow, how to operate in daily life, what the responsibilities are, how to engage with society and the ethical issues confronting professionals in their day-to-day research. The book systematically discusses what every student should be told when entering academic or industrial research so that they can avoid going through the painful process of learning by personal experience and lots of errors. Rather than being technical, it is philosophical and sometimes even anecdotal, combining factual information and commonly accepted knowledge on research and its methods while at the same time clearly distinguishing between objective and factual concepts and data and subjective considerations. The book is about scientific research in general and as such holds true for any scientific field. However, it is fair to say that the different fields differ in their research cultures and in their ecosystems. The book reflects the author's experience accumulated over almost 50 years of teaching graduate courses and lecturing in doctoral symposia at Politecnico di Milano, University of Zurich, TU Wien, Peking University and at various conferences and of academic research in informatics, also known as computer science. This book is mainly intended for students who are considering research as a possible career option, for in-progress researchers who have entered doctoral programs and for junior postdoctoral researchers. It will also appeal to senior researchers involved in mentoring students and junior researchers.
