Sassoon's story Sylvia Plath Day by Day, Volume 2 Carl Rollyson, 2024-08-15 Since her death in 1963 Sylvia Plath has become an endless source of fascination for a wide audience ranging from readers of The Bell Jar her semiautobiographical novel to her groundbreaking poetry as exemplified by Ariel. Beyond her writing however interest in Plath was also fueled in part by the nature of her death a suicide while she was estranged from her husband Ted Hughes who was himself a noteworthy British poet. As a result a steady stream of biographies of Plath projecting an array of points of view about their subject has appeared over the last fifty five years. Now biographer Carl Rollyson the author of two previous biographical studies of Plath has surveyed the vast amount of material on Plath including her biographies her autobiographical writings and previously unpublished material and distilled that data into the two volumes of Sylvia Plath Day by Day. As the follow up to volume 1 volume 2 commences on February 14 1955 the day Plath wrote to her mother declaring her intention to study in England a decision that marked a major turning point in her life. With brief signposts provided by the author this volume follows Plath through the entirety of her marriage to Hughes the challenges of simultaneously raising a family and nourishing her own creativity and the major depressive episodes that ultimately led to her suicide in 1963. By providing new angles and perspectives on the life of one of the twentieth century's most celebrated poets Sylvia Plath Day by Day offers a comprehensive image of its enigmatic subject.

The Oxford History of the Novel in English Simon Gikandi, 2016-09-05 Why did the novel take such a long time to emerge in the colonial world? And what cultural work did it come to perform in societies where subjects were not free and modes of social organization diverged from the European cultural centers where the novel gained its form and audience? Answering these questions and more Volume 11 The Novel in Africa and the Caribbean since 1950 explores the institutions of cultural production that exerted influence in late colonialism from missionary schools and metropolitan publishers to universities and small presses. How these structures provoke and respond to the literary trends and social peculiarities of Africa and the Caribbean impacts not only the writing and reading of novels in those regions but also has a transformative effect on the novel as a global phenomenon. Together the volume s 32 contributing experts tell a story about the close relationship between the novel and the project of decolonization and explore the multiple ways in which novels enable readers to imagine communities beyond their own and thus made this form of literature a compelling catalyst for cultural transformation The authors show that even as the novel grows in Africa and the Caribbean as a mark of the elites mastery of European form it becomes the essential instrument for critiquing colonialism and for articulating the new horizons of cultural nationalism Within this historical context the volume examines works by authors such as Chinua Achebe Nadine Gordimer George Lamming Jamaica Kincaid V S Naipaul Zoe Wicomb J M Coetzee and many others

A Cultural-Historical Study of Children Learning Science Marilyn Fleer,Niklas Pramling,2014-10-01 This book moves beyond the traditional constructivist and social constructivist view of learning and development in science It draws upon cultural historical theory in order to theorise early childhood science education in relation to our currently globalised education contexts The book argues that concept development in science for young children can be better theorised by using Vygotsky s concept of Imagination and creativity Vygotsky s theory of play and his work on higher mental functions particularly the concept of inter and intrapsychological functioning Key concepts are extracted from the theoretical section of the book and used as categories for analysis in presenting evidence and new ideas in the second section of the book In this second part of the book the authors examine how science knowledge has been constructed within particular countries around the globe where empirical research in early childhood science education has occurred The third part of the book examines the nature of the encounter between the teacher and the child during science learning and teaching In the final part of the book the authors look closely at the range of models and approaches to the teaching of early childhood science that have been made available to early childhood teachers to guide their planning and teaching They conclude the book with a theoretical discussion of the cultural historical foundation for early childhood science education followed by a model of teaching scientific concepts to young children in play based settings including homes and community contexts
