

TECHNICAL WRITING BASICS

- Technical writing communicates technical information and ideas to a specific audience for a specific purpose
- Main purposes are to instruct, define, describe or document scientific and technical processes and mechanisms
- Products include manuals, instructions, and technical reports in the scientific and technical community, and letters, memos, and business reports in the business community
- Technical writing originated centuries ago with the codes and diagrams of Leonardo da Vinci, Copernicus, and Shakespeare
- With the arrival of the computer revolution, technical writing has experienced a boom; computer assembly manuals, technical reports, and diagrams can be found in many areas

KNOW YOUR READER

- The reader is always your primary concern in technical writing
- Before you begin to write, ask yourself the following questions:
 - Who do they need to know?
 - What do they already know?
 - Will proper technical writing be understood?
- The three types of groups are technical, managerial, and general readers
- Each group demands different requirements from the technical writer

TECHNICAL READERS

- Technical readers are divided into two groups
- These include those who are scientific, research and design theory:
 - In (i) - the doctor who is working on a new synthetic substance for insulin, the space shuttle engineer who is hypothesizing about a new design
- Technicians focus on the practical aspects of technology:
 - Such as maintenance, operation, and inspection of equipment:
 - In (i) - boiler technicians, radiologists, lighting designers
- Writers document only for technical readers do not need to be convoluted and difficult to understand
- They should explain the complexities as clearly and completely as possible

MANAGERIAL READERS

- Managerial readers need to be informed, not they may not require the same depth of technical detail as required by theorists and technicians
- Be direct, succinct, and thorough
- The main goal is to get to the bottom line
- These readers require summaries of the facts that are needed to make decisions about a product
- They may not share the same level of technical expertise as technical readers because they possess varied backgrounds
- Some readers may be experts in their field, while others may be primarily managers

GENERAL READERS

- When writing for general readers, you must assume that they have little knowledge or understanding of your area
- Use clear, direct, and self-explanatory writing
- Avoid jargon
- Avoid contradictions and treat the reader respectfully
- Even though your reader is inexperienced with your area, it does not mean that he/she is unintelligent
- Remember that the function of your writing is to inform and to educate about a specific subject

COLLECTING INFORMATION

RESEARCH

- Research your subject thoroughly before you plan or write
- Primary research includes any research that you conduct
 - Examples: Conducting interviews with engineers, performing experiments, creating systems
- Secondary research includes any research that was completed by someone else
 - Examples: Any information that can be found in a book, journal, or magazine
- Good product specifications they provide information and help you to prepare questions to ask engineers or specialists

ANALYSIS

- Analyze a mechanism in four parts
 - 1. Describe the main function of the mechanism
 - 2. Explain the general options
 - 3. Visually describe how the mechanism fits into the whole mechanism
 - 4. List & explain the different components of the mechanism
- Analyze a process in four parts
 - 1. Explain what the process is and why it occurs
 - 2. Explain in detail how the process takes place
 - 3. List and explain each step
 - 4. Discuss the final results

PREPARE FOR AN INTERVIEW

- Prepare for the interview in advance by familiarizing yourself with the product
- Read any information you can find, question anyone who has had contact with the product, and think clearly about what you want to know
- Study existing technical documents from the company from within products of the product
- Mark information that needs to be updated
- Code information that can be used again
- If you do not have much background, then you can always ask the basic questions
- Write your questions down before the interview in a logical progression
- Decide if you will tape the interview or take notes
- Choose an interviewee who will most likely have the information you need (i.e., engineer, programmer)

THE INTERVIEW

- Outline the interview, ask for clarification if you do not understand what is being described
- Ask for a demonstration of the product or process
- Maintain contact with the interviewee after the interview as you walk on the process
- Questions will come up that need further clarification
- Learn by doing, if it is possible, then try the product or process yourself

Questions for the Interviewee

- What does the product do?
- Why should the customer want it?
- When will it be ready?
- Where will it be available?
- Who is the target audience?
- How does it work?
