Spanish Colonial Women and the Law: Complaints, Lawsuits, and Criminal Behavior Linda Tigges, 2017-03-15 Women in early 18th century Spanish Colonial New Mexico had rights and privileges under Spanish law that were not enjoyed by other women in North America until the late 19th and early 20th century Women were considered separate entities under the law and valuable members of Spanish society As such they could own property inherit in their own name and act as court witnesses In particular they could make accusations and denunciations to the local alcalde mayor and governor which they frequently did The documents in this book show that Spanish Colonial women were aware of their rights and took advantage of them to assert themselves in the struggling communities of the New Mexican frontier In the documents the women are shown making complaints of theft physical and verbal abuse by their husbands or other women and of non payment of dowries or other inheritance Other documents are included showing men accusing women of misrepresenting property ownership and dowry payments and of adultery and slander Spain was a legalistic society and both women and men used the courts to settle even minor matters Because the court proceedings were written down by a scribe and stored in the archives many documents still exist From these thirty one have been selected allowing us to hear the words of some outspoken Spanish women and the sometimes angry men speaking their minds in court about their spouses lovers of their spouses children and relatives as well as their land livestock and expected inheritance The documents transcribed and translated in this book are a small number of the existing documents held in Santa Fe at the Spanish Archives of New Mexico at the Bancroft Library at University of California the Archivo General de la Nacion in Mexico City and elsewhere A synopsis editor s notes maps and biographical notes are provided The material can be considered a companion in part to Ralph Emerson Twitchell s 1914 two volumes The Spanish Archives of New Mexico available in new editions from Sunstone Press This is an important work from Linda Tigges and Richard Salazar dealing with early eighteenth century women and the law However their court cases were decided these Spanish Colonial women were successful in the legacy they left for future generations If you are a twelfth generation New Mexican or a newcomer you will find this work priceless Henrietta Martinez Christmas Mining Scientific Papers: NLP-enhanced Bibliometrics Iana Atanassova, Marc Bertin, Philipp Mayr, 2019-10-09 What Work Means Claudia Strauss, 2024-06-15 What Work Means goes beyond the stereotypes and captures the diverse ways Americans view work as a part of a good life Dispelling the notion of Americans as mere workaholics Claudia Strauss presents a more nuanced perspective While some live to work others prefer a diligent 9 to 5 work ethic that is conscientious but preserves time for other interests Her participants often enjoyed their jobs without making work the focus of their life These findings challenge laborist views of waged work as central to a good life as well as post work theories that treat work solely as exploitative and soul crushing Drawing upon the evocative stories of unemployed Americans from a wide range of occupations from day laborers to corporate managers both immigrant and native born Strauss explores how diverse Americans think about the place of work in a good life gendered meanings of breadwinning accepting financial support from family friends and the state and what the ever elusive American dream means to them By considering how post Fordist unemployment experiences diverge from joblessness earlier What Work Means paves the way for a historically and culturally informed discussion of work meanings in a future of teleworking greater automation and increasing nonstandard employment Recognizing Heritage Thomas H. Guthrie, 2021-11-08 In 2006 Congress established the Northern Rio Grande National Heritage Area to recognize the four hundred year coexistence of Spanish and Indian peoples in New Mexico and their place in the United States National heritage areas enable local communities to partner with the federal government to promote historic preservation cultural conservation and economic development Recognizing Heritage explores the social political and historical context of this and other public efforts to interpret and preserve Native American and Hispanic heritage in northern New Mexico The federal government's recognition of New Mexico's cultural distinctiveness contrasts sharply with its earlier efforts to wipe out Indian and Hispanic cultures. Yet even celebrations of cultural difference can reinforce colonial hierarchies. Multiculturalism and colonialism have overlapped in New Mexico since the nineteenth century when Anglo American colonists began promoting the region's unique cultures and exotic images to tourists. Thomas H. Guthrie analyzes the relationship between heritage preservation and ongoing struggles over land, water, and identity resulting from American colonization. He uses four sites within the heritage area to illustrate the unintentional colonial effects of multiculturalism: a history and anthropology museum, an Indian art market, a tricultural commemorative plaza, and a mountain village famous for its adobe architecture. Recognizing Heritage critiques the politics of recognition and suggests steps toward a more just multiculturalism that fundamentally challenges colonial inequalities.

Writing for Museums Margot Wallace, 2014-10-06 Words are everywhere in the museum. Amidst all the visual exhibits and in many non-exhibition areas, swarm a host of words talking to a vast swath of people in ways that visuals cannot. Signage at the information desk, brochures, exhibition videos, guided tours, membership materials, apps, and store labels in a multi-screen world where information explodes in every corner of the field of vision: clarity comes from the presence of words among the feast of visuals, helping contemporary audiences feel at home.

Research bears out the need for a range of learning tools and it's not just visitors who benefit from verbal cues donors educators community partners and volunteers will all engage more effectively with the museum that explains its brand mission with good writing Whether written by administrators staffers freelancers or interns words are delivered by people in your museums with the knowledge that they will be interpreted by strangers Your story is told everywhere and with each narration it reinforces your brand hopefully every single word reflects your brand Each chapter tells how to put into words the stories you need to tell including Blogs Brochures Exhibition videos Guided tour scripts Collateral programming talks Marketing plans Proposals to community partners Public Relations releases Social Media Solicitation letters Surveys Volunteer communications Website If you ever wished for a good writer right on staff ready to take on project major or routine here's the help you're looking for
