SUBJECT: Criminal Law: Batterer Intervention Program Progress Report in Domestic Violence Cases (approve form CR-168) (Action Required)

Issue Statement
Defendants in domestic violence cases must, as a condition of probation, successfully complete a 52-week batterer's intervention program. Courts may not be consistently receiving necessary information to evaluate the progress of the defendants in these programs.

Recommendation
The Criminal Law Advisory Committee recommends that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2007, approve form CR-168, Batterer Intervention Program Progress Report, that will assist courts in monitoring defendants' progress in batterer intervention programs.

The proposed form is attached at page 3.

Rationale for Recommendation
The proposed new optional form is for batterer intervention program (BIP) providers to inform the court of progress in the defendant's treatment in domestic violence cases. The purpose of the form is to assist the court in evaluating the defendants' progress in the statutorily mandated program. The proposed form, CR-168, Batterer Intervention Program Progress Report, was considered in light of a recent report to Attorney General Bill Lockyer by the Task Force on Local Criminal Justice Response to Domestic Violence. That report noted that concern has been expressed that defendants often do not successfully complete BIP counseling and suggested that the courts and probation departments do more supervision of defendants' progress in these programs. The
