Lesson 41Progressive and Emphatic Forms

Each of the six verb tenses has a progressive form that expresses a continuing action. To make the progressive form, use the appropriate tense of the verb be with the present participle of the main verb.

They are trying. (present progressive)

They were trying. (past progressive)

They will be trying. (future progressive)

They have been trying. (present perfect progressive)

They had been trying. (past perfect progressive)

They will have been trying. (future perfect progressive)

The present and past tenses have additional forms, called emphatic, that add force, or emphasis, to the verb. To make the emphatic forms, use do, does, or did with the base form of the verb.

I do try. (present emphatic)

I did try. (past emphatic)

► Exercise 1 Underline the progressive or emphatic verb form in each sentence and write in the blank which form it is.
