House of Commons,1868 Labour, Land, and Capital in Ghana Gareth Austin,2005 An examination of the varied ways outside and inside markets in which Asante producers obtained labor land and capital during the transformative era This is a study of the changing rules and relationships within which natural human and man made resources were mobilized for production during the development of an agricultural export economy in Asante a major West African kingdom which became by 1945 the biggest regional contributor to Ghana's status as the world's largest cocoa producer The period 1807-1956 as a whole was distinguished in Asante history by relatively favorable political conditions for indigenous as well as during colonial rule for foreign private enterprise It saw generally increasing external demands for products that could be produced on Asante land This book which fills a major gap in Asante economic history transcends the traditional divide between studies of precolonial and of twentieth century African history It analyses the interaction of coercion and the market in the context of a rich but fragile natural environment the central process being a transition from slavery and debt bondage to hired labor and agricultural indebtedness It contributes to the broad debate about Africa's historic combination of emerging capitalist institutions and persistent precapitalist ones and tests the major theories of the political economy of institutional change It is written accessibly for an interdisciplinary readership Gareth Austin is a lecturer in Economic History London School of Economics and Political Science and Joint Editor of the Journal of African History
