Ruaha Unirvesity Applicatio Form 2015 2016:

Smart Agricultural Services Using Deep Learning, Big Data, and IoT Gupta, Amit Kumar, Goyal, Dinesh, Singh, Vijander, Sharma, Harish, 2020-10-30 The agricultural sector can benefit immensely from developments in the field of smart farming However this research area focuses on providing specific fixes to particular situations and falls short on implementing data driven frameworks that provide large scale benefits to the industry as a whole Using deep learning can bring immense data and improve our understanding of various earth sciences and improve farm services to yield better crop production and profit Smart Agricultural Services Using Deep Learning Big Data and IoT is an essential publication that focuses on the application of deep learning to agriculture While highlighting a broad range of topics including crop models cybersecurity and sustainable agriculture this book is ideally designed for engineers programmers software developers agriculturalists farmers policymakers researchers academicians and students Handbook of Research on Current Trends in Cybersecurity and Educational Technology Jimenez, Remberto, O'Neill, Veronica E., 2023-02-17 There has been an increased use of technology in educational settings since the start of the COVID 19 pandemic Despite the benefits of including such technologies to support education there is still the need for vigilance to counter the inherent risk that comes with the use of such technologies as the protection of students and their information is paramount to the effective deployment of any technology in education The Handbook of Research on Current Trends in Cybersecurity and Educational Technology explores the full spectrum of cybersecurity and educational technology today and brings awareness to the recent developments and use cases for emergent educational technology Covering key topics such as artificial intelligence gamification robotics and online learning this premier reference source is ideal for computer scientists industry professionals policymakers administrators researchers academicians scholars practitioners instructors and students Indigenous Methodologies, Research and Practices for Sustainable Development Marcellus F. Mbah, Walter Leal Filho, Sandra Ajaps, 2022-10-21 This book states that whilst academic research has long been grounded on the idea of western or scientific epistemologies this often does not capture the uniqueness of Indigenous contexts and particularly as it relates to the achievement of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs The SDGs were announced in 2015 accompanied by 17 goals and 169 targets These goals are the means through which Agenda 2030 for sustainable development is to be pursued and realised over the next 15 years and the contributions of Indigenous peoples are essential to achieving these goals Indigenous peoples can be found in practically every region of the world living on ancestral homelands in major cities rainforests mountain regions desert plains the arctic and small Pacific Islands Their languages knowledges and values are rooted in the landscapes and natural resources within their territories However many Indigenous peoples are now minorities within their homelands and globally and there is a dearth of research based on Indigenous epistemologies and methodologies Furthermore academic research on Indigenous peoples is typically based on western lenses Thus the paucity of Indigenous methodologies within mainstream research discourses present challenges for implementing practical research designs and interpretations that can address epistemological distinctiveness within Indigenous communities There is therefore the need to articulate as well as bring to the nexus of research aimed at fostering sustainable development a decolonising perspective in research design and practice This is what this book wants to achieve The contributions critically reflect on Indigenous approaches to research design and implementation towards achieving the sustainable development goals as well as the associated challenges and opportunities The contributions also advanced knowledge theory and practice of Indigenous methodologies for sustainable development

Remote Sensing of Soil and Land Surface Processes Assefa

Melesse, Omid Rahmati, Khabat Khsoravi, 2023-10-31 Remote Sensing of Soil and Land Surface Processes Monitoring Mapping and Modeling couples artificial intelligence and remote sensing for mapping and modeling natural resources thus expanding the applicability of AI and machine learning for soils and landscape studies and providing a hybridized approach that also increases the accuracy of image analysis The book covers topics including digital soil mapping satellite land surface imagery assessment of land degradation and deep learning networks and their applicability to land surface processes and natural hazards including case studies and real life examples where appropriate This book offers postgraduates researchers and academics the latest techniques in remote sensing and geoinformation technologies to monitor soil and surface processes Introduces object based concepts and applications enhancing monitoring capabilities and increasing the accuracy of mapping Couples artificial intelligence and remote sensing for mapping and modeling natural resources expanding the applicability of AI and machine learning for soils and sediment studies Includes the use of new sensors and their applications to soils and sediment characterization Includes case studies from a variety of geographical areas

One Health Case Studies Susan

Cork, Joann Lindenmayer, 2024-12-24 The One Health Case Studies book is a collection of international case studies showcasing the work of One Health practitioners and their projects The book explores current areas of One Health grouped into themes of One Health policy pests and pathogens water and the environment agriculture and food security and education and community engagement This book provides an understanding of One Health practice globally through 28 diverse case studies Each case study is carefully designed with clear aims expected learning outcomes and reflective questions to encourage academic mastery and real world application of knowledge The book also bridges the gap between theory and practice by offering insights into current One Health best practices challenges and opportunities

The Political Economy of Climate Finance Effectiveness in Developing Countries Mark Purdon, 2024-01-01 There is ample evidence that engaging developing countries on climate change mitigation would have significant positive impacts on global climate efforts. There is much debate however on the most effective strategy for unlocking these low cost mitigation opportunities. While the Clean Development Mechanism CDM emerged as the main climate finance instrument for engaging developing countries under the Kyoto Protocol, the carbon market approach it embodied would largely be replaced by a new array of climate finance instruments based on climate funds. In The Political Economy of Climate Finance Effectiveness in Developing Countries, Mark Purdon shows that the effectiveness of climate finance instruments to reduce emissions under either strategy has depended on the interaction between prevailing ideas about how to develop a nation's economy as well as state interests in various economic sectors. Based on multiple field visits over a decade in three countries, the author demonstrates that climate finance instruments have been more effectively implemented when the state treats them as vehicles for addressing priority development issues. Climate finance instruments were more consistently and effectively implemented in Uganda and Moldova than Tanzania despite differences in state capacity between countries. This pattern held for the CDM as well as subsequent instruments largely based on climate funds such as Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation REDD and other national mitigation actions. Contributing to broader debates on international climate cooperation, Purdon's findings inform international efforts to support national climate plans and catalyze low carbon development by emphasizing the importance of domestic politics and the state.

The Biology of African Savannas Bryan Shorrocks, William Bates, 2015 Savannah habitats comprise an ecologically important but ultimately fragile ecosystem. They constitute one of the largest biomes on Earth, covering almost 20% of the land surface and can be simply described as tropical and subtropical grasslands with scattered bushes and trees. Most savannas occur in Africa, although smaller areas can be found in South America, India, and Australia. They form a rich mosaic of diverse ecosystems, and this book offers a concise but comprehensive introduction to their ecology, biodiversity, and conservation. The Biology of African Savannas describes the major plants, grasses, and trees such as Acacia, and animals, mainly large mammals that live in this habitat, and examines the biological and ecological factors that influence their population size, interactions such as predation, and community composition. Conservation issues such as climate change, hunting, and conflict between wildlife and domestic animals are also discussed. This new edition has been updated throughout with the latest research in the field and contains new technique boxes which introduce readers to some of the analytical methods used to study African savannas. This accessible text is suitable for both senior undergraduate and graduate students taking courses in savannah and tropical ecology as part of a wider ecology and/or conservation biology degree programme. It will also be of relevance and use to the many professional ecologists and conservation practitioners requiring a concise but authoritative overview of the topic Conservation and Management of Large Carnivores - Local Insights for Global Challenges Tasos Hovardas, Stephen Redpath, José Vicente López-Bao, Vincenzo Penteriani, Arie Trouwborst, 2021-06-29 Mosquitoes of the World Richard C.
