Work From Home Accounting Keeping Jobs:

Caring and Counting Reynolds, Tracey, Callender, Claire, Rosalind Edwards, 2003-07-25 The main work life balance policies promoted by government focus on the amount of time mothers spend at work This report challenges this approach It suggests that what happens inside the workplace and how this interacts with family life is just as important Household

Accounts Susan Porter Benson, 2015-09-25 With unprecedented subtlety compassion and richness of detail Susan Porter Benson takes readers into the budgets and the lives of working class families in the United States between the two world wars Focusing on families from regions across America and of differing races and ethnicities she argues that working class families of the time were not on the verge of entering the middle class and embracing mass culture Rather she contends that during the interwar period such families lived in a context of scarcity and limited resources not plenty Their consumption Benson argues revolved around hard choices about basic needs and provided therapeutic satisfactions only secondarily if at all Household Accounts is rich with details Benson gathered from previously untapped sources particularly interviews with women wage earners conducted by field agents of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor She provides a vivid picture of a working class culture of family consumption how working class families negotiated funds how they made qualitative decisions about what they wanted how they determined financial strategies and individual goals and how in short families made ends meet during this period Topics usually central to the histories of consumption the development of mass consumer culture the hegemony of middle class versions of consumption and the expanded offerings of the marketplace contributed to but did not control the lives of working class people Ultimately Household Accounts seriously calls into question the usual narrative of a rising and inclusive tide of twentieth century consumption Careers of Professional

Women Rosalie Silverstone, Audrey Ward, 2022-08-24 Originally published in 1980 women in the United Kingdom exhibited a pattern of work which was notably different from that in other countries of the EEC at the time Its distinguishing feature was the high proportion of women who returned to work by the time they were forty years of age having temporarily retired to care for young families Although this pattern was of fairly recent origin it was thought likely to be sustained Women's current life pattern was typically school training work withdrawal retirement Despite the existence of this pattern agencies responsible for education training and employment failed to recognise it as normal often treating women as special cases Thus there was a lack of flexibility in employment and insufficient retraining or part time work The problem was important both for qualified women who had made a considerable personal investment in a career and for the nation in terms of effective manpower utilisation The skills required in many occupations traditionally entered by women are either learnt on the job or by means of relatively short formal training courses This book however examines in some depth seven careers which require a minimum of three years training After a foreword by Baroness Nancy Seear and a chapter which introduces the concept of the bimodal career and the consequent problems of withdrawal and re entry each chapter is written by an author who has conducted original research into the occupation under discussion and specifically into women's personal experiences in that particular calling A concluding chapter considers the implications of the findings both for the individuals concerned and for social policy
