The Modern Construction and Postmodern Deconstruction of Self Kire

Sharlamanov, Mia Kostovska, 2025-02-21 This book aims to explain the self as understood decades ago and its evolution in the time of postmodernism Approaching it primarily from a sociological perspective while incorporating insights from psychology and philosophy it portrays the modern self as a unitary coherent unified subject created in the time of modernity which during postmodernism has evolved into a fluid decentralized and fragmented subject with increasingly independent multiple identities The creation of the modern self has been influenced by individualization rationalization and power Each factor is explored in a separate chapter detailing its impact on the development of the modern Cartesian self The authors draw on the theories of Goffman Bauman and Baudrillard to illustrate the changing nature of the self viewing it as a performer a fluid entity and a simulacrum While Goffman is not strictly a postmodern author his ideas foreshadow postmodernism particularly regarding the transformation of the self Bauman and Baudrillard as key figures in postmodern thought provide valuable insights into this transformation of the self in contemporary times The book uniquely connects two time periods in which the self evolves arguing that social factors influence its changing characteristics As these social factors shift over time so does the self Key aspects of the self and its evolution are examined through an original multidimensional approach that spans a longer time interval

Development and Antidevelopment Debate Martha Jalali Rabbani, 2016-03-16 Reflecting on the philosophical assumptions that sustain the development debate Rabbani analyzes how the modern project of development and the antidevelopment discourse reduce the human condition to a struggle for self preservation and likewise social and international cooperation to a strategic and self defeating process The book centers on core inconsistencies in the rationale of both discourses as they stand for individual autonomy collective self determination and mutual respect Building these social goals around the requirement of non interference in individual or collective affairs neither discourse can practically enhance nor coherently sustain respect to people's freedom and diversity The author argues that any real alternative to the normative reductions and actual destructions carried on by international development theory and practice would have to recover the non contingent solidarity implied in people's search for self understanding Awareness of this human condition in its turn actively fosters relations of universal inclusion and global friendship Instructors and graduate and undergraduate students in the fields of peace studies development studies political sciences and political philosophy professionals and volunteers working in governmental and non governmental organizations and development agencies will find this volume ideally fit for purpose Searching for a Self: Identity in Popular Culture, Media and Society Arthur Asa Berger, 2022-03-22

Culture and Identity in a Muslim Society Gary S. Gregg, 2007-02-15 In the last fifteen years psychologists have rediscovered culture and its influence on emotion thought and self Many researchers have come to the conclusion that the world's cultures can be ranked according to the degree to which they are individualist or collectivist with Western cultures falling at the individualist end and non Western cultures at the collectivist end These scholars argue that while individualist cultures give rise to independent selves leading Westerners to think and act autonomously collectivist cultures foster interdependent selves leading non Westerners embedded in social relationships to think and act relationally Culture and Identity in a Muslim Society presents an alternative to the individualist collectivist approach to identity Unlike most psychological and anthropological studies of culture and self Gary Gregg's work directly investigates individuals using study of lives style interviews with young adults living in villages and small towns in southern Morocco Analyzing these young adults life narratives Gregg builds a theory of culture and identity that differs from prevailing psychological and anthropological models in important respects In contrast to modernist theories of identity as unified the life narratives show individuals to articulate a small set of shifting identities In contrast to post modern theories that claim people have a kaleidoscopic multiplicity of fluid identities the narratives show that the identities are integrated by repeated use of culturally specific self symbols metaphors and story plots Most importantly the life narratives show these young Moroccans self representations to be pervasively shaped by the volatile cultural struggle between Western style modernity and authentic Muslim tradition Offering a new approach to the study of identity the volume will be of interest to cross cultural psychologists anthropologists scholars of Middle East societies and researchers specializing in the study of lives Youth and the digital era. Gesellschaft Personality, Roles, and Social Behavior W. Ickes,E.S. Knowles,2012-12-06 Personality and Roles Sources of Regularities in Social Behavior For behavioral scientists whether they identify primarily with the science of psychology or with that of sociology there may be no challenge greater than that of discovering regularities and consistencies in social behavior After all it is such regularities and consistencies that lend predictability to the behavior of individuals in social contexts in particular to those events that constitute dyadic interactions and group processes In the search for behavioral consistencies two theoretical constructs have emerged as guiding principles personality and roles The theoretical construct of personality seeks to understand regularities and consistencies in social behavior in terms of relatively stable traits enduring dispositions and other propensities for example needs motives and attitudes that are thought to reside within individuals Because it focuses primarily on the features of individuals the construct of personality is fundamentally psychological in nature By contrast the theoretical construct of roles seeks to understand regularities and consistencies in social behavior in terms of the directive influence of coherent sets of rules and prescriptions that are provided by the interpersonal occupational and societal categories of which individuals are continuing members Because it focuses primarily on features of social structures the construct of roles is fundamentally sociological in nature The Body Social Anthony Synnott,1993 In this captivating book Anthony Synnott explores a subject which has been woefully ignored our bodies He surveys the history for thinking about the body and the senses then focuses on specific themes gender beauty the face hair touch smell and sight He concludes with a review of classical and contemporary theories of the body and the senses Thinking about the body will never be the same after reading this book Body, Self, and Society Anne E. Becker,2013-11-25 Anne E Becker examines the cultural context of the embodied self through her ethnography of bodily aesthetics food exchange care and social relationships in Fiji She contrasts the cultivation of the body self in Fijian and American society arguing that the motivation of Americans to work on their bodies shapes as a personal endeavor is permitted by their notion that the self is individuated and autonomous On the other hand because Fijians concern themselves with the cultivation of social relationships largely expressed through nurturing and food exchange there is a vested interest in cultivating others bodies rather than one s own
