

PERSUASIVE WRITING

Steps to Plan your writing –

First – read the issue or prompt TWICE – be sure you are clear about the argument about which you are being asked to take a side.

Second – create a T-chart to brainstorm all of the reasons you can think of for BOTH sides – you may actually have more to say about the side you don't agree with!

Third - Pick the side you think you can best defend based on your T-chart – circle your three best reasons – these will become the framework or skeleton for your paragraphs.

Persuasive Essay – Directions – use the planning steps you have completed for the topic you have chosen to write a persuasive essay.

REMEMBER – your GOAL is to convince the reader to agree with you about the issue.

Paragraph One – Introduce the issue you are writing about – try to begin in an interesting way that will “hook” your reader and make them want to read more. Introduce each of your reasons, but DO NOT start to explain the reasons or give the details or examples in this paragraph.

Paragraph Two – Reintroduce your Reason One – now you should fully explain this reason and give all of your details and examples.

Paragraph Three – Reintroduce your Reason Two – fully explain this reason and give all of your details and examples to support this reason.

Paragraph Four – Reintroduce your Reason Three – fully explain this reason and give all of your details and examples to support this reason.

Conclude in a strong, clear way – do not repeat the things you have already said, try to make your point one last time using different wording.
