Pre-Lab Statistical Analysis Section

Example 1

Researchers tested four treatments of Escherichia coli bacteria on young guinea pigs and recorded the number of deaths that occurred. The number of deaths is dependent on the treatment. Because there is a relationship between the number of deaths and the treatment, the researchers tested the hypothesis that the number of deaths is the same for all treatments. The researchers used a chi-square test to test the hypothesis. The results of the test are shown in the table below.

1. Formulate a hypothesis about the number of deaths that is dependent on the treatment of guinea pigs. (Hypothesis: $H_0: \mu = 0$. The null hypothesis is that the number of deaths is the same for all treatments and the test statistic is $H_0: \mu = 0$.)

Treatment	Number of Deaths	Expected Deaths	Observed Deaths	df
Control	10	10	10	1
Treatment	10	10	10	1
Total	20	20	20	2

Researchers would calculate a chi-square test statistic and compare it to the critical value. The critical value is the value that the test statistic must be greater than to reject the null hypothesis. The critical value is 3.841 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom.

2. Calculate the test statistic. The test statistic is the chi-square test statistic. The test statistic is calculated by taking the sum of the squared differences between the observed and expected values, divided by the expected values. The test statistic is 0.000 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom.

3. The test statistic is 0.000 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom. The test statistic is less than the critical value, so the null hypothesis is not rejected.

4. There is a relationship between the number of deaths and the treatment of guinea pigs.

5. The test statistic is 0.000 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom. The test statistic is less than the critical value, so the null hypothesis is not rejected.

6. The test statistic is 0.000 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom. The test statistic is less than the critical value, so the null hypothesis is not rejected.

7. The test statistic is 0.000 for a chi-square test with 2 degrees of freedom. The test statistic is less than the critical value, so the null hypothesis is not rejected.
