Before the Dawn Joseph A. Altsheler, 2016-06-29 A tall well favoured youth coming from the farther South boarded the train for Richmond one raw gusty morning He carried his left arm stiffly his face was thin and brown and his dingy uniform had holes in it some made by bullets but his air and manner were happy as if escaped from danger and hardships he rode on his way to pleasure and ease He sat for a time gazing out of the window at the gray wintry landscape that fled past and then having a youthful zest for new things looked at those who traveled with him in the car The company seemed to him on the whole to lack novelty and interest being composed of farmers going to the capital of the Confederacy to sell food wounded soldiers like himself bound for the same place in search of cure and one woman who sat in a corner alone neither speaking nor spoken to her whole aspect repelling any rash advance Catalog of Copyright Entries Library of Congress.
