Frontex and Human Rights Melanie Fink,2018-12-20 This book analyses the allocation of responsibility for human rights violations that occur in the context of border control or return operations coordinated by Frontex The analysis is conducted in three parts The first part examines the detailed roles and powers of Frontex and the states involved during joint operations focussing on the decision making processes and chains of command The second and third parts develop general rules that govern the allocation of responsibility under public international law ECHR law and EU non contractual liability law in order to apply them to Frontex operations To illustrate the practical implications of the findings the study uses four hypothetical scenarios that are based on situations that have in the past given rise to human rights concerns The book concludes that whilst responsibility for most human rights violations lies with the host state of an operation it often shares this responsibility with participating states who contribute large assets as well as Frontex However the book also exposes how difficult it is for individuals to find a place for bringing complaints against violations of their human rights suffered at the EU s external borders This casts doubts on whether the current legal framework offers them an effective remedy

Marshak, 2021-11-15 Ecosystem based fishery management EBFM is rapidly becoming the default approach in global fisheries management The clarity of what EBFM means is sharpening each year and there is now a real need to evaluate progress and assess the effectiveness and impacts By examining a suite of over 90 indicators including socioeconomic governance environmental forcing major pressures systems ecology and fisheries criteria for 9 major US fishery ecosystem jurisdictions the authors systematically track the progress the country has made towards advancing EBFM and making it an operational reality The assessment covers a wide range of data in both time multiple decades and space from the tropics to the poles representing over 10% of the world's ocean surface area The authors view progress towards the implementation of EBFM as synonymous with improved management of living marine resources in general and highlight the findings from a national perspective Although US centric the lessons learned are directly applicable for all parts of the global ocean Much work remains but significant progress has already been made to better address many of the challenges facing the sustainable management of our living marine resources This is an essential and accessible reference for all fisheries professionals who are currently practicing or progressing towards ecosystem based fisheries management It will also be of relevance and use to researchers teachers managers and graduate students in marine ecology fisheries biology biological oceanography global change biology conservation biology and marine resource management are more limited such as the sharing of hydrological data Why do riparian states cooperate especially when power asymmetries between upstream and downstream countries are characteristic of transboundary river basins How do non state actors affect the management of international rivers What are the conditions that facilitate or hinder cooperation This book wrestles with these questions by exploring water disputes and cooperation in the major river systems in Asia and by comparing them with cases in Africa Europe and the United States This book will be of great value to scholars students and policymakers interested in transboundary water disputes and cooperation hydro diplomacy and river activism It was originally published as special issues of Water International
