

Building Your Career: Creating Your Own Career Poem

Ready, Hands! Poems About Work introduces the doing of work in a wide variety of forms. It also celebrates workers. All in all, Ready, Hands! is here to inspire discussion, creative writing, art projects, and even answers to the old question, "What do you want to do when you grow up?"

1. Research: would you be interested in an interview someone who holds that job to find out what a typical day is like. Try to establish a feel for the workplace.
2. Interview details. Try to find out some useful facts about the career that only an insider would know. (What does your work, what would you see, hear, smell, taste, touch on the job?)
3. List what you might see to describe the actions needed for the job.
4. Imagine that you're taking a snapshot—one moment of the day—of the person at work. What would you focus on?
5. Craft your poem. Play with words, metaphors, personification, and so on. Experiment with line breaks. Use strong, vivid words and images.
6. Read your poem aloud. Repeat, revise, repeat until it sounds just right.
7. Create an illustration for your poem inspired by collage-making and book-making techniques/collages. You can use small objects, photos, dried leaves and flowers, your own drawings or paintings, and paper of all kinds, including magazine and newspaper clippings, wrapping paper, packaging, stationery, notebook paper, map-reflection with your poem.
