Speech Analysis and Synthesis
 Wiktor Jassem,1968 Nahuas and Spaniards James Lockhart,1991 The Nahua Indians of central Mexico often misleadingly called Aztecs after the quite ephemeral confederation that existed among them in late pre Hispanic times were the most populous of Mesoamerica s cultural linguistic groups at the time of the Spanish conquest They remained at the center of developments for centuries thereafter since the bulk of the Hispanic population settled among them and they bore the brunt of cultural contact This collection of thirteen essays five of them previously unpublished by the leading authority on the postconquest Nahuas and Nahua Spanish interaction brings together pieces that reflect various facets of the author s research interests Underlying most of the pieces is the author s pioneering large scale use of Nahua manuscripts to illuminate the society and culture of native Mexicans in the Spanish colonial period The picture of the Nahuas that emerges shows them far less at odds with the colonial world from it what is useful to them and far more capable to maintaining their own pre conquest identity than has previously been suggested

Non-native Speech Ulrike Gut, 2009. Based on an innovative corpus-based approach, this book offers a comprehensive survey of the phonological and phonetic properties of L2 speech in English and German. The first part of the book critically examines current theoretical models and research methodologies in the field of second language acquisition of phonology and describes the advances that have been made in corpus linguistics over the past few years, in particular the development of phonological learner corpora. It furthermore presents the first learner corpus of L2 English and L2 German that is fully aligned and has extensive phonological annotations: the LeaP corpus. The second part of the book describes the results of the quantitative and qualitative corpus analyses in the following areas of non-native speech: fluency, final consonant cluster realisation, vowel reduction, and speech rhythm, intonation, and general foreign accent. In addition, the influence of many non-linguistic factors, including instruction and a stay abroad, on the phonological properties of non-native speech is explored.
