Vancouver Light Visions Of A City:

The Elgar Companion to the Built Environment and the Sustainable Development Goals Alex Opoku, 2024-02-12 Exploring the link between Sustainable Development Goals SDGs and the built environment this erudite Companion provides a comprehensive overview and critical examination of key topics and complex research issues Structured around the 5Ps of the SDGs people planet prosperity peace and partnerships the Companion suggests potential routes for the future direction of research within this multidisciplinary field of study Vancouver Rail Project, City of Vancouver, Clark County, 2003

Urban Nation Robert Freestone, 2010 Provides the first national account of the historical impact of urban planning and design on the Australian landscape It defines and documents hundreds of places parks public spaces redeveloped precincts neighbourhoods suburbs up to whole towns that contribute to the character of urban and suburban Australia Healthy Cities Namir Khan, Willem H. Vanderburg, 2001 Modern cities can be designed to constitute a more supportive environment for a great many activities provide a more livable habitat and reduce the burden imposed on the biosphere They can be made healthier in terms of the definition by World Health Organization and more sustainable by means of new and emerging preventive approaches Healthy Cities focuses on those preventive approaches that can make cities healthier and more sustainable This book as well as the two companion volumes Sustainable Energy and Sustainable Production is the result of a twelve year research project carried out at the Center for Technology and Social Development at the University of Toronto The research findings led to the development of a new conceptual framework and strategy aimed at converting technological and economic growth into development that would gradually become more sustainable Design Capital Sherry McKay, AnnaLisa Meyboom, 2022-07-29 Well designed infrastructure brings social value that far exceeds its initial construction expenditure but competition for scarce government funds and a general public perception of infrastructure as mere efficiency has often left design ill considered This book provides designers with the tools needed to argue for the value of design the design capital as the authors term it In naming and defining design capital design can once again become part of the discussion and realization of every infrastructure project Design Capital offers strategies and tools for justifying public spending on design considerations in infrastructure projects Design has the ability to make infrastructure resonate with cultural or social value as seen in the case studies which bestows infrastructure with the potential to accrue design capital Support for this proposition is drawn from various methodologies of economic valuation and Bourdieu's theory of cultural capital explanation of design methodology and education and a series of historical and contemporary case studies The book also addresses some of the more controversial outcomes associated with contemporary infrastructure gentrification globalization and consumer tourism With this book designers can make a stronger case for the value of design in public infrastructure The Case for Cities Vikas Mehta, Danilo Palazzo, Conrad Kickert, Christopher Auffrey, Terry Grundy, 2024-07-31 The fateful year 2020 brought dramatic challenges to American cities The COVID 19 pandemic and the civil unrest caused by the killing of George Floyd led to a cascade of negative media stories about cities often politically motivated. It seemed possible that the economic and demographic gains cities had achieved over the last few decades could be lost. In fact, there has been measurable population loss in larger cities caused by changing work life patterns and changing public perceptions about the costs and benefits of urban living. Faced with these challenges, advocates for cities must make a vigorous case for cities and show how they aren't the cause of America's social, environmental, economic, and public health problems but in fact are the places where the solutions to those problems will be found. The 38 chapters in The Case for Cities draw on the expertise of contributors from the academic, professional, and civic sectors to explore the creative tension between the two great values on which the vigor of cities depends: that they should be Cities of Choice, places where people who have choice want to live; and Cities of Justice, places that welcome and support people with limited choices. The book's underlying perspective is that these two values are symbiotic and that promoting both is what leads to viable, sustainable urban resurgence. This book will be of keen interest to students and practitioners in urban planning, urban design, real estate, architecture, and landscape architecture, and to urban advocates and civic leaders.

Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, 2003 Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, 1996 Dwell, 2002-06. At Dwell, we're staging a minor revolution. We think that it's possible to live in a house or apartment by a bold modern architect, to own furniture and products that are exceptionally well designed, and still be a regular human being. We think that good design is an integral part of real life. And that real life has been conspicuous by its absence in most design and architecture magazines. "Mind, Heart, and Vision" Norman R. Ball, National Museum of Science and Technology (Canada), Engineering Centennial Board (Canada), 1988. Distributed for the National Museum of Science and Technology, Ottawa, Canada. An illustrated overview of the history of Canadian engineering. Written in a style accessible to a non-specialist audience. Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc., Portland, OR.

Smart Living for Smart Cities T. M. Vinod Kumar, 2020-05-05. This book, based on extensive international collaborative research, highlights the state of the art design of smart living for metropolises, megacities, and metacities, as well as at the community and neighbourhood level. Smart living is one of six main components of smart cities; the others being smart people, smart economy, smart environment, smart mobility, and smart governance. Smart living in any smart city can only be designed and implemented with active roles for smart people and smart city government, and as a joint effort combining e-Democracy, e-Governance, and ICT/IoT systems. In addition to using information and communication technologies, the Internet of Things, Internet of Governance, e-Governance, and Internet of People, e-Democracy, the design of smart living utilizes various domain-specific tools to achieve coordinated, effective, and efficient management, development, and conservation, and to improve ecological, social, biophysical, psychological, and economic well-being in an equitable manner without compromising the sustainability of development ecosystems and stakeholders. This book presents case studies covering more than 10 cities and centred on domain specific smart living components The book is issued in two volumes and this volume focus on city studies

Making Vancouver Robert A.J. McDonald, 2011-11-01 Making Vancouver explores social relationships in Vancouver from 1863 to 1913 It considers how urbanization structured social boundaries among Burrard Inlet s increasingly large population and is premised on the belief that in studying social boundaries historians must abandon single category forms of analysis and build into their research strategies the capacity to explore complexity Robert McDonald thus traces the relationship between the two forms of identify class and status for the whole of Vancouver society The book starts with the years when settlement on Burrard Inlet centred around two lumber mills explores periods of elite dominance of city institutions and then of growing social and political conflict following the arrival of the railway examines the heightening of class tensions at the turn of the century charts economic growth during the boom years before the war and concludes with three chapters on the tripartite status hierarchy that emerged in concert with that of a class dichotomy It reveals a western city that was neither egalitarian nor closed to opportunity Vancouver up to the pre war crash of 1913 was open and dynamic The rapidity of growth easy access to resources narrow industrial base and influence of ethnicity and race softened the thrust towards class division inherent in capitalism Far more powerful in directing social relations was the quest for status creating a social structure that was no less hierarchical than that predicted by class theory but much more fluid The social boundary that separated the working class from others is revealed as a division that for much of the pre war boom period divided Vancouver society more fundamentally than the boundary separating labour from capital
