The Southern Version of Cursor Mundi Vol I: Lines 1-9228 Sarah M. Horrall, 1978 The medieval poem Cursor

Mundi is a biblical verse account of the history of the world offering a chronological overview of salvation history from Creation to Doomsday Originating in northern England around the year 1300 the poem was frequently copied in the north before appearing in a southern version in substantially altered form Although it is a storehouse of popular medieval biblical lore and a fascinating study in the eclectic use of more than a dozen sources the poem has until now attracted little scholarly attention This five part collaborative edition presents the Arundel version of the poem with variants from three others In addition it provides a discussion of sources and analogues detailed explanatory notes and a bibliography Published in English

Travel and Translation in the Early Modern Period ,2006-01-01 The relationship between travel and translation might seem obvious at first but to study it in earnest is to discover that it is at once intriguing and elusive Of course travelers translate in order to make sense of their new surroundings sometimes they must translate in order to put food on the table The relationship between these two human compulsions however goes much deeper than this What gets translated it seems is not merely the written or the spoken word but the very identity of the traveler These seventeen essays which treat not only such well known figures as Martin Luther Erasmus Shakespeare and Milton but also such lesser known figures as Konrad Gr nemberg Leo Africanus and Garcilaso de la Vega constitute the first survey of how this relationship manifests itself in the early modern period As such it should be of interest both to scholars who are studying theories of translation and to those who are studying hodoeporics or travel and the literature of travel
