

Textual Analysis Essay

Overview

The purpose of the Textual Analysis Essay is to demonstrate your comprehension of an article, briefly respond to it based on what the author has written, and evaluate it based on how the author has chosen to deliver information. You will be able to choose one out of twelve articles to read, summarize, respond to, and evaluate.

A summary is a comprehensive and objective restatement of the main ideas of a text. It requires you to use your own words, significantly condense the original text, provide accurate representations of the main points of the text that they summarize, and avoid personal opinions. The summary portion of your paper will focus on “what” the author is saying in their article. You need to be careful of plagiarism. The only way to provide an effective summary is to critically read the article. This means reading the article at least twice through and using your own words to summarize what is being said in the article.

The response portion of your paper will focus on the rhetorical elements of purpose, audience, and stance. To guide your response, answer the following questions: What is the author’s purpose for writing? Who is the intended audience? Based on the thesis statement, what stance does the author take on the subject being discussed? Which points do you find most convincing? Least convincing? What could the author have done differently to improve the article? In addition to answering these questions, include textual evidence to support a few of your claims; more specifically, you need one direct quote and one paraphrase to implement within this paragraph.

The evaluative portion of your paper will focus on critiquing four strategies the author utilizes: content,
