

9 Box Model Potential Matrix

The nine-box performance matrix assesses employees based on a combination of current performance and potential performance. Each has three ratings—high, moderate, and limited—resulting in nine potential combinations.

Knowing how to use the nine-box matrix can prove helpful with succession planning and assessing leadership potential.

Discussing specific development strategies for each employee as a part of the assessment discussion is an emerging best practice. This way, information concerning strengths and weaknesses is fresh in everyone's minds, and it's a natural transition to move to strategies to move each employee to the next readiness level.
