(Pages 174–175)

Knowledge and Understanding

1. Some forms of energy are the chemical potential energy stored in the gasoline, kinetic energy, gravitational potential energy, thermal energy (heat from the motor), and sound.
2. (a) mass
(b) energy
(c) force
(d) power
3. joule – James Joule
newton – Isaac Newton
watt – James Watt
4. The work you do on the box depends on its mass, m , the gravitational field strength, g , and the vertical height it is raised, Δy .

Inquiry and Communication

5. (a) $\frac{29.5 - 25.1}{29.5} \times 100\% = 14.9\%$
The percentage of initial kinetic energy lost is 14.9%.
- (b) The energy did not cease to exist, but was converted into other forms (likely heat and sound).
6. (a) The measure the efficiency of this incline, you would need to know the distance up the ramp, the force applied, the mass of the sled and child and the vertical height. If you knew the angle that the hill was compared to the horizontal, you could calculate the vertical height from the length up the slope using trigonometry.
- (b) For 100% efficiency, there could be no friction between the sled and the ground.
7. The conservation of energy refers to the inability to create or destroy energy during an interaction. Conserving energy is the reduction of our use of energy converted from fossil fuels and other sources to allow them to last longer.

Making Connections

8. (a) The large mass of the bus help to reduce injury because the acceleration will be small. The bumpers and body panels also help to absorb energy to minimize the energy that will be absorbed by passengers.
- (b) We could increase the safety of buses by adding more padding around passenger compartments, seat belts, and perhaps even air bags.
- (c) School buses currently have excellent safety ratings, and the added features in part (b) are expensive to install.
9. (a) The ski jumper will acquire gravitational potential energy as he is transported to the top of the hill. This gravitational energy will be converted to kinetic energy as the jumper slides down the hill, and then reconverted back into some gravitational energy as he jumps from the end of the ramp. All of the energy will be converted to kinetic as he reaches the bottom of the hill (if we ignore the loss due to friction).
- (b) The law of conservation of energy is what governs the energy transformations.
- (c) The main safety feature of this sport is the careful construction of the hill so that the ski jumper does not experience a large normal force from landing. Also the protection of the head by a helmet and suits minimize injury in case of a fall.

Math Skills

10. (a) $W = \Delta ed$
(b) $E_p = m^2$
(c) $P = \frac{1}{t}$
(d) $E_k = v^2$
