

Control of Blood Sugar Levels

What hormones are involved in the maintenance of blood sugar?

Why?

Our bodies require a constant supply of glucose for its energy. The pancreas is the source from which glucose is released into circulation. Blood glucose levels are lower than 100 after glucose has been metabolized in that single cell. A homeostatic control of blood glucose levels maintains the blood glucose levels low. This process involves negative feedback, the control of insulin and glucagon. In summary, hormones regulate the glucose metabolism and energy use in the body.

Model 1 - Hormonal Control of Glucose

1. The pancreas secretes two hormones that regulate blood glucose levels and maintain it in the range 70-100 mg/dL.
2. Which hormone does Model 1.1 represent? What does it do? (What happens when blood glucose levels are high?)
3. Which hormone does Model 1.2 represent? What does it do? (What happens when blood glucose levels are low?)
4. Why do cells need glucose?
5. According to the graph in Model 1.1, what happens to blood glucose levels after a meal?
6. According to the graph in Model 1.2, what happens to blood glucose levels after a meal?
