Abstract

Question	Answer
What is the main objective of the research?	Identify the factors that influence the adoption of mobile banking services.
What is the research methodology?	Quantitative research methodology using a survey of 300 respondents.
What are the key findings?	The study found that perceived ease of use and perceived usefulness are the most significant factors influencing the adoption of mobile banking services.
What are the implications of the research?	The research suggests that mobile banking providers should focus on improving the user interface and providing educational support to increase adoption rates.
What are the limitations of the research?	The study is limited to a specific population and time period, and the results may not be generalizable to other contexts.
What are the future research directions?	Future research should explore the role of social factors and the impact of different mobile banking services on adoption.
