Sociology Thomas J. Sullivan, 2004 This book celebrates the achievements of Alice Guy Blach 1873 1968 the first woman motion picture director and producer From 1896 to 1907 she created films for Gaumont in Paris In 1907 she moved to the United States and established her own film company Solax From 1914 to 1920 Guy Blach was an independent director for a number of film companies Despite her immensely productive and creative career Guy Blach's indispensable contribution to film history has been overlooked She entered the world of filmmaking at its nascent stage when films were seen primarily as a medium in the service of science or as an adjunct to selling cameras Working with Gaumont cameramen and cameras and the new technical advances for the projection of film she became one of the film pioneers ushering in the new era of motion pictures as a narrative form Written by cinema history experts and curators this handsome volume brings to light a critical new mass of Guy Blach's film oeuvre in an effort to restore her to her rightful place in film history

Radio Tracking and Animal Populations Joshua Millspaugh, John M. Marzluff, 2001-08-14 Radio Tracking and Animal Populations is a succinct synthesis of emerging technologies and their applications to the empirical and theoretical problems of population assessment The book is divided into sections designed to encompass the various aspects of animal ecology that may be evaluated using radiotelemetry technology experimental design equipment and technology animal movement resource selection and demographics Wildlife biologists at the leading edge of new developments in the technology and its application have joined forces

Insect Populations In theory and in practice Jack P. Dempster, Ian F.G. McLean, 2012-12-06 Insects are by far the largest group of animals on Earth with over a million described species and they occupy a wide range of ecological niches

they may be herbivores predators parasites or decomposers Some are of particular economic importance as pests of agriculture and forestry as vectors of animal and human disease or as species of interest to wildlife conservation Thus an understanding of the processes determining their numbers is of considerable practical value Entomologists have played a leading role in developing a theoretical basis to Population Ecology but we still do not have adequate experimental and observational proof for many of the theoretical ideas that have been proposed As a result the subject has been beset with arguments for more than 50 years This volume attempts to reconcile some of these controversies while also reviewing the current state of our knowledge The editors have drawn together an international list of contributors whose views reflect a range of opinions on how natural populations are stabilised They have succeeded in producing a book that both covers the main alternative views in population theory and contains some of the best recent field studies of insect populations This Royal Entomological Society Symposium volume will be of great interest to all entomologists and ecologists particularly those who wish to know more about Population Dynamics
