on the American Frontier makes the complete journal available for the first time allowing readers to follow a contemporary of Lewis and Clark on his journey through the Ohio Mississippi and Red River valleys and to reassess the account's authenticity. Between 1808 and 1813 Maley covered more than 16 000 miles through thirteen present day states. Much of that travel took him beyond the fringes of civilization and his journal offers some of the earliest descriptions of the Ozark Plateau the Ouachita Mountains and the upper reaches of the Red River. His account also provides a firsthand look at life on the frontier in the tumultuous years following the Louisiana Purchase. Editor F Andrew Dowdy has carefully retraced Maley's steps and with extensive use of maps has reconciled some of the journal's more confusing passages to give readers clear modern day reference points. Numerous annotations and appendices provide necessary historical context from the link between Maley's 1809 Indiana copper exploration and the Treaty of Fort Wayne to the ways his 1811 foray into Spanish Texas presaged further filibusters there during the Mexican War for Independence. The fascinating tale of one of the wider ranging explorers in American history. Wanderer on the American Frontier is an invaluable resource that provides a unique window on the West in the early nineteenth century.

Behavioural and Ecological Consequences of Urban Life in Birds Caroline Isaksson, Amanda D. Rodewald, Diego Gil, 2018-06-19. Urbanization is next to global warming the largest threat to biodiversity. Indeed, it is becoming increasingly evident that many bird species get locally extinct as a result of urban development. However, many bird species benefit from urbanization especially through the abundance of human-provided resources and increase in abundance and densities. These birds are intriguing to study in relation to their resilience and adaptation to urban environments but also in relation to their susceptibility and the potential costs of urban life. This Research Topic, consisting of 30 articles (one review, two meta-analyses and 27 original data papers), provides insights into species and population responses to urbanization through diverse lenses including biogeography, community ecology, behaviour, life history, evolution and physiology. Tracking marine megafauna for conservation and marine spatial planning Jorge M.
