Teaching Protective Behaviours to Young Children Carolyn Gelenter, Rachel Bailey, Belinda Riley, 2024-08-16 This teaching resource provides staff in education settings with a comprehensive way of supporting children aged 4-9 to learn that they have a right to feel safe and can talk with someone about anything even if it feels awful or small. Fully revised and updated, this second edition provides a practical application of the Protective Behaviours framework including suggested session plans and accompanying resources. The book explores a range of situations that are faced by children and teaches them to develop a practical understanding of how to reflect on feelings, take safe risks, make responsible choices, and problem solve if they do find themselves in a situation that is uncomfortable or unsafe. The book enables children to develop an awareness of what safe feels like both emotionally and physically. Empowers children to know and understand that they have the right to consent even from a young age and that there are strategies for getting help if needed. Gives children the skills to understand their feelings, thoughts, and behaviours and to make informed decisions based on their understanding of protective behaviours. Supports children to identify safe adults and to build a safety network. Provides guidance for children with varying communication abilities to communicate about their safety in multi-sensory ways. Includes ideas to share with parents, carers, and questions for adults to think about their own learning and practices. with strategies for working with students and teachers      The Person and Primary Emotions Peter A. Bertocci, 2012-12-06 I shall propose that the unlearned motives of persons are primary emotions I am not surprised that many informed readers will wonder where I have been for the last five decades when even the conception of unlearned motives instincts drives urges has been shown to be little more than the result of undisciplined investigation And here I am proposing that in the nature and dynamics of some emotions that persons experience we can gain more adequate understanding of human motives at the unlearned level During the last five decades I have spent most of my time teaching the history of philosophy metaphysics philosophy of religion ethics and theory of value the psychology of personality and the philosophy of personality Increasingly I have paid special attention to the ways in which claims about the nature of man influence the theory of motives emotions and feelings What kept impressing me is the way in which the interpretation of the findings about motives feelings and emotion reflect unargued conceptions of human nature or that the views of fundamental motives feelings and emotions unduly dominate the underlying conception of the person In focusing attention first on the essential nature of a person I shall be discussing issues that are actually basic to our more analytical interpretation of the nature and dynamics of the primary motives or primary emotions      Family and Community Interventions for Children Affected by AIDS Linda M.
