TEST QUESTIONS

Verbal - Spatial Ability - Problem Solving
Questions + Vocabulary

Figure Association

These questions evaluate your ability to first define the relation of two shapes, and then find which option has the same relationship with a third shape presented at the bottom. In the example below the large red circle has a relation to the small red circle and the question is asking you to determine which option maintains the same relation to the large rectangle with a blue square in.

To answer the question we first define the relation of the large circle to the small circle which could be defined as 1) being similar and 2) having half of the original shape missing.

Then, we apply this relation to the given rectangle. By the first definition, options A and D are eliminated as they are the same size. Then option C is also eliminated as it is not missing half of the original shape. Therefore option B is the answer.

Other Questions

Other questions in this section may evaluate your ability to find the true difference or guess out of more choices, counting items in a list that satisfy a given condition, finding a value given a percentage, and more.

Lesson 3: Strategies to Use

Read the instructions

Although there is no previous knowledge required when taking problems, practicing as much as possible before taking you before. Review the previous section and make sure you know some problem solving strategies in mathematics tests.

Read the instructions

It is proven essential to carefully read the instructions to the test. They might suggest a different way to interpret your answers or provide other important information. Sometimes a simple word in the question could determine what the value right answer is. So, be careful and double check when reading the questions and determine what there is asking for accurately.

Structure your time

Try not to rush. Divide the whole time allotted by the number of questions, and you will get an idea of how long you have for each question. Sometimes you get a question that is very fast and can determine more who is faster questions you find some answer but do not spend too much time on this question. These should avoid for all other questions and the same length of the remainder of the test.

Rule out definite wrong answers

The benefit of a multiple choice answer is that there are likely to be at least one wrong answer that you can rule out immediately. You can use logic to rule out the answer that just makes sense. For example, if the question is asking you how much 20% of 100 is, you can easily eliminate all options with a value of 100, as it doesn't make sense.
